MODERNISING PLAN OF U. S. NAVY CALLED PACT BREACH

British Official Replies Affirmatively To Member's Query

POWERS INVOLVED

Ponsonby Says Representations May Bring Issue To Head

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—In the House of Commons today at question time, Commander C. Bellairs (Conservative) asked whether representations had been made to signatories of the Washington Convention that alteration in the elevation of guns on capital ships or an expenditure for the purpose of increasing the radius of action would, in the opinion of the British Government, be a breach of the Convention.

Mr. Arthur Ponsonby, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, answered in the affirmative and added that the powers concerned were the United States and Japan.

(Reuter's American Service)

Washington, July 30.—The British representations against the modernisation program of the American navy might bring to a head the controversy which has been stirring naval circles since the Disarmament Conference. Officials in touch with the question are of the opinion that neither the French nor the Japanese Governments share the British point of view, though Italy might. If the matter, therefore, ever came before the signatory powers for a decision Great Britain would probably be outvoted.

Japanese Flock To Colors Following Immigration Rule

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 20.—A significant effect of the recent tension between America and Japan over the Immigration issue was the increase in the number of applications for service with the forces, according to the official report of Colonel Ishimoto, Commander of the Hongo Regimental District of Tokio.

Those who attempted to evade their period of service registered a marked decrease, says the report. In Tokio alone the number was only five or six, whereas in former years it was almost ten times that number.

The report adds that the general health of the applicants was greatly improved, though a considerable number were suffering from eye-trouble, caused, it is believed, by the effects of last September's earthquake.

Berlin Says "No" To League Treaty

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, July 30.—The Government have informed the Secretariat of the League on Natons of their disagreement with the mutual guarantee pact as being ill-fitted to assure universal security and limitation of armaments. They point out that totally disarmed Germany would be in an impossible position. The Government submit the alternative suggestion that, instead of piling up treaties and agreements subsidiary to the Covenant, the latter itself should be more thoroughly developed, that violent settlement of disputes should be prohibited, that an arbitration court for political disputes should be instituted and, especially, that disarmament should be compulsory for all States. They add that Germany would then be ready to enter the society of nations and cooperate in the preservation of peace.

Luxuries Tariff In Effect In Japan

Judgment Is Given In Rosenfeld Action Over Partnership Agreement

British Supreme Court Holds Mr. Maurice David Liable For Share In Firm's Losses Except With Regard To Debt Owed Spunt

Judgment was given yesterday in the British Supreme Court by Judge Sir Skinner Turner in the suit brought by Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld & Son, cotton merchants, against Mr. Maurice David, a former partner in the firm.

The action was the outcome of a disagreement among the partners which resulted in Mr. David's withdrawal from the firm in February of this year. The claim was based on various losses which the firm had suffered in the period prior to Mr. David's withdrawal, plaintiffs holding that he, as a partner, was responsible for a one-fourth share of these losses, and on the provisions of the agreement. The total claim was for Tls. 21,146.40.

Mr. Tycho Wing, instructed by Mr. J. W. Schoenfeld, appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Reader Harris, instructed by Mr. Sidney A. Moss, for the defendant.

In giving judgment, the Court held that Mr. David had withdrawn from the firm, thereby bringing into play a clause which provided conditions for his withdrawal prior to the expiration of a ten-year period stipulated in the agreement. These conditions were that he was to have returned to him his invested capital, Tls. 25,000, that he was not to have returned to him a premium of Tls. 20,000 which was to have been paid in four yearly installments for Tls. 5,000 each and of which Tls. 10,000 had already been paid in, and no other sums were to be paid him.

ACCOUNTING ORDERED

The latter clause, the Court held, did not relieve defendant from his share of the losses of the partnership, and the Court therefore ruled that there must be an accounting and that defendant must bear his share in the loss. Defendant, however, was not liable for his share in the loss. Defendant, however, was not liable for his share in a debt owed by the firm to Messrs. J. Spunt & Co., contracted in order to relieve Mr. A. B. Rosenfeld from the consequences of a restrictive covenant into which he had entered. Defendant must lose the premium of Tls. 20,000 in full, as penalty for his having withdrawn from the partnership, and must also bear his share of the losses in the dealings in cotton futures.

Accordingly, an accounting was ordered on the lines laid down by the Court, plaintiffs being successful in their claims except in respect of the debt to Messrs. J. Spunt & Co. Costs were reserved.

The judgment in full follows:

"The two plaintiffs and the defendant entered into a partnership in writing in May, 1921, the defendant obtaining one-fourth share, but the document does not state the shares of the plaintiffs.

"In February, 1924, difficulties existed and the partnership came to an end. It is the settlement of the matters between the partners that has led to this action.

"The construction of the agreement is the first thing to be determined; it has been argued for the plaintiffs that under it the defendant could only leave before the expiration of the term fixed by consent of all the partners; for the defendant that he could leave at any time and be quit of the whole affair on certain terms.

TERMS OF AGREEMENT

"It is clear that the partnership was for 10 years renewable at the end of that time by mutual consent; that the defendant was to pay in Tls. 25,000 as his share of the capital, and Tls. 20,000 as a premium; and was also to assume "as long as agreement remains in force" his one-fourths share of a certain debt due to Messrs J. Spunt & Co. In return he was to get one-fourth share of the business. The accounts were to be made up as and from May 17, 1921, and thereafter they were made up to December 31 in each year. We also know that, recently at all events, the partnership has not been successful. It is necessary to remember the nature of a contract of partnership; it is essentially as a general rule one for the personal activities of the partners and as such it is at least doubtful how far a Court of Equity would make any order compelling a partner to attend to the work of the partnership. To that extent, therefore, I take it any partner can bring a partnership to an end without the consent of the other partners, subject always to such terms and penalties as the contract itself or the law may impose. And, in that event, I take it the relations of the partners inter se fail to be decided in the usual way. But here, the possibility of the ending of the partnership as far, at all events, as the defendant was concerned, was clearly contemplated in the original agreement: "should the party of the second part withdraw from the co-partnership within a period of 10 years," then certain consequences were to follow. And it is this clause that has given rise to the difficulties.

DEFENDANT WITHDREW

As to the words, "Should the party withdraw within the period," I do not see why they should not be construed to mean exactly what they say; this leads to no absurdities or anything like that and if such a construction seems to benefit one party or the other it is after all their contract and the words are being used in their ordinary sense. To my mind therefore there must be a withdrawal by the defendant, not an exclusion of him by his co-partners, an act of his own, for good cause or bad cause, with or without the consent of his co-partners. But it must be his withdrawal and there can be no doubt that that happened in this case.

"There was a quarrel on February 12, 1924 (there had been other difficulties before, but it has not been really argued that any of them or all of them were enough in law to have enabled a Court to

EYES OF JAPAN ARE CENTERED ON AIR FORCE

Yearly Aviation Festival To Be Held; Service To Be Expanded

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 20.—Naval, military, and civilian aviators are planning to hold an aviation festival every year after the French example.

The dates fixed for the proposed festival are December 14 and 15 when fifteen years ago Japanese aviators made their first flight.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 23.—The recent visits of world-fliers, American, French, and British, have given a fillip to aviation in this country and aroused considerable interest among the general public, who are realising how far Japan is behind the rest of the world in aeronautics, both commercial and as a means of national defence.

Mention has already been made of the voluntary offerings of contributions on the part of all classes of Japanese towards the bolstering up of the study and practice of aviation here. These former contributions have all been dwarfed by the offer of one hundred thousand yen to the Army Aviation Bureau by an Osaka banker, who requests that the money be sent on some aspect of national air defence.

At the present time one of Japan's foremost civilian fliers, Yukichi Goto, is planning a round Japan flight, the route he is to follow taking in Osaka, Kakoshima, Fukuoka, Fusan, Seoul, Dairen, Nagasaki, Kanagawa, Muroran, Kasumigaura, Tokorozawa, Kagamigahara, and back to Osaka.

The expansion of the military and naval air arms is engaging the attention of the departments concerned, while forecasts of their plans find prominence in the press from time to time. Both the Navy and the War departments are convinced of the imperative need of enlarging the number of aviation corps, provided the necessary funds can be found, and, according to announcements, are planning to curtail in one direction in order to expand in that.

According to reports the War Office intends to add within the next three years five aviation corps to the present six at an additional cost of from Y. 25,000,000 to Y. 30,000,000, while the Navy plans during 1925 to complete the air equipment at Kasumigaura and embark on additional air-corps at Kure, Sasebo, and Omura.

SAYS LABOR HAS SCHEME TO INCREASE EMPLOYMENT

Philip Snowden Gives Review Of Government Policy

PRODS RAILWAYS

Carriers Urged To Recondition And Re-Equip Lines

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—At the instance of the Liberals, the Government's unemployment policy was reviewed in the House of Commons today by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Philip Snowden, who at the outset drew ironical cheers and laughter by remarking that the Government had a positive remedy for unemployment, but the more positive the remedy the slower the cure.

The Chancellor foreshadowed proposals, which, though, involving heavy public expenditure, he hoped would add to the productive capacity of the country, notably construction of new roads and the development of electricity. He emphasised the importance of foreign trade and hoped that the Inter-Allied Conference would result in such an agreement as would give the people of Europe confidence to settle down to work and reopen Continental Markets, but Britain was bound to face intensified competition in the world's trade in future and therefore she must do everything possible to cheapen and improve production.

Mr. Snowden stated that the Government was bringing pressure to bear on railway companies to recondition and re-equip their lines and to adopt electrification. The Government had decided to revive the Severn barrage scheme, which, if undertaken, would be the most difficult engineering feat in history.

The Government had accepted in principle Exchequer assistance for the sugar-beet industry for a period of 10 years, which, he was assured, would enable six new factories to be started almost immediately. He believed that this was one of the biggest things that could be done for British agriculture, which it would revive.

Mr. Lloyd George and Dr. MacNamara twitted the Government on adopting schemes at which they had previously sneered. Sir Laming Worthington-Evans criticised the schemes on the ground that they would not find work for the men this winter. He moved reduction of the Minister's salary, but the motion was rejected by 254 votes to 204.

NIPPON PLANS TO REORGANIZE CABINET POSTS

Under-Secretaries Will Be Appointed For Ministries

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 18.—The Diet having sanctioned the additional expenditure involved by the Government's proposed appointment of Under-Secretaries, the following regulations governing the new service have been drawn up:

1.—The Under-Secretary will rank as a government official to be appointed by Imperial nomination, and will be exempt from the general regulations governing the appointment of officials.

His business will be to assist the minister of state in administrative affairs and policies, and to control all government affairs under his minister that have anything to do with the Diet.

2.—The original vice-minister, who will in future be known as the executive secretary, will be appointed by His Majesty as hitherto, but will be subject to the rules appointing government officials. He will remain in office, independently of any ministerial change, while the under-secretaries will have to share the fate and responsibility of the ministry, to which they belong.

These regulations will come into effect from the beginning of September.

COLD STORAGE FIRM SUED IN BRITISH COURT

Question Of Jurisdiction Over Non-Resident Company Is Raised

The Union Cold Storage Company, Limited, was sued in the British Supreme Court yesterday morning before Judge Sir Skinner Turner, by Messrs. R. B. Moorhead and A. J. Halse. The plaintiffs were represented by Mr. M. Reader Harris, and Messrs. G. F. Wright and J. E. Hadeley Roberts for the defendants.

The lawsuit is in connection with some land registered at the British Consulate-General in the name of the Union Cold Storage Company, Limited, and a writ had been served upon Mr. R. C. Aitkenhead, of the Shanghai Ice and Cold Storage Company, Limited.

Mr. Wright applied for the discharge of the order whereby power was given to serve a writ upon the Union Cold Storage Company through Mr. R. C. Aitkenhead, Manager of the Shanghai Ice and Cold Storage Company, Limited, and asked that service of the writ upon Mr. Aitkenhead be set aside as well as all subsequent proceeding in the action as against the Union Cold Storage Company. He based his application on the grounds that the defendant company never resided in China, neither have they ever carried on business in China, nor ever had any agents in China.

Counsel for the defence argued at great length, citing many legal authorities and precedents. At noon, the point at issue had not been decided and the hearing was adjourned until this morning.

Soviet To Grant Naphta Concession If Terms Warrant

(Reuter's Service)

Moscow, July 30.—The Izvestia says that the Union of Soviet Republics is ready to grant concessions for the exploitation of naphta wells in Saghalien by mixed companies with Soviet, Japanese and American capital, as the best way out of the difficulty. It resents Japan's point of view that compensation should be paid for evacuation, and declares that Japan's rights were only acquired through military occupation. The article does not mention the outstanding British claims in the island.

Mukden Orders Ban On Red Propaganda

Harbin, July 31.—Chu Ching-lan has been instructed by Marshal Chang Tso-lin to prohibit all Bolshevik propaganda within his jurisdiction. Similar instructions have been given to the Police in Manchuria.

On behalf of his father, General Chang Hsueh-liang is leaving for Kirin and Heilungkiang cities for the inspection of troops. He is accompanied by Generals, Chiang Tung-hsuan and Oong Tse-ling.

CREDENTIALS PRESENTED BY SOVIET ENVOY

Karakhan, Ambassador, Makes Official Call On Tsao Kun

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 31.—M. Karakhan presented his credentials as Ambassador to the President this morning. All the Cabinet Ministers attended the ceremony which was slightly more elaborate than in the case of a Minister, and included the playing of the Soviet and Chinese national anthems.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, July 31.—Yesterday, M. Karakhan addressed a Note to the Doyen of the Diplomatic Body, formally asking for the transfer of the former Russian Legation.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, July 31.—It is gathered that the meeting held today among the British, American, Japanese and French ministers here are in connection with the Chinese Eastern Railway. It appears that the ministers for the powers concerned have decided to maintain the status quo of the railway, though they some time ago discussed the question as to the land bureau of the railway.

Japan May Force All Ships To Carry Radio Equipment

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 24.—The recent tragedy to the steamer Matsuyama Maru, which sank with all hands but one off the Goto Islands, has impressed the authorities with the necessity of a compulsory wireless outfit on all Japanese vessels.

A set of regulations is now being prepared by the Department of Communications, and will be promulgated next month to take effect from the beginning of 1925.

The proposed regulations will also insist on the employment of radio operators on board all vessels.

At present very few ships with a tonnage of less than 5,000 tons are equipped with wireless, and while many of them carry wireless, there are no operators on board to work it.

Hughes Honored In French Capital

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 30.—Mr. Hughes, the United States Secretary of State, was given a reception at the Town Hall today. In the course of a speech he dwelt on the historical friendship between France and declared that the reign of justice all over the world must be realised by progress of international law. His speech evoked much applause.

REPARATIONS BODY DECIDES TO TAKE PART IN LONDON PARLEY

Commission, After Lengthy Debate On Subject, Decides To Participate In Conference; French Proposal Stirs Great Variety Of Comment In Paris Press

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 30.—The new French formula, which proposes recourse to arbitration when the Reparationns Commission fails to agree on the question of German default, has evoked varying comment.

It is approved by the Matin and L'Oeuvre as likely to solve all the questions before the Conference, but is denounced by the Journal, which declares that the Conference is drifting towards wreck, and by the Echo de Paris, which predicts rejection of the formula by Anglo-Saxon finance.

The Figaro and the Journal declare that the members of the Reparations Commission, who have been invited to participate in the deliberations in London, will refuse to go to London.

Later.—The Reparations Commission, after lengthy deliberations, today decided to go to London.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—Havas Agency states that the French arbitration proposal in the event of Germany's default in the payment of reparations, as finally drafted, would operate in the case of either disagreement in the Reparation Commission on German default or the failure of German industrialists to carry out contracts for deliveries in kind. Appeals would be allowed from decisions of the Reparations Commission and the Transfer Committee regarding the stoppage of deliveries in kind.

Furthermore, the British, French and Italian military and engineering experts and diplomatists have drafted a scheme for the military evacuation of the Ruhr proportionately as Germany pays her debts.

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Mr. E. D. Morel (Labor), Mr. Philip Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that Germany had paid up to May 30 £458,000,000. This included reparations and the costs of the Armies of Occupation, excluding the Ruhr.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, July 30.—The French delegation proposes the text of a protocol permitting recourse to arbitration in the event of the Reparations Commission not being unanimous in the matter of German defaults. It is thought that this proposal will be accepted as a base for discussion. The French and Belgian experts, assisted by the Italian representatives, are working on a plan for the military evacuation of the Ruhr, conceived in the same methodical manner as the economic plan already adopted by the Conference. The withdrawal of the troops from the Ruhr, according to this project, will be proportionate to the commercialisation of the German debt.

Members of the Reparations Commission will arrive in London at 11 o'clock this evening, where an official meeting takes place tomorrow morning.

Melbourne House Passes Bill For National Defense

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, July 30.—The House of Representatives today passed the Defence Equipment Bill providing for the construction of two 10,000 ton cruisers. A Labor amendment favoring construction of both, instead of one of the cruisers locally was defeated by 29 votes to 22, Mr. S. M. Bruce, the Prime Minister, explained that the Government desired to accept the offer to build the first cruiser in England.

Persia Accepts U. S. Suggestions

(Reuter's Service)

Teheran, July 30.—The newspaper Iran publishes a letter from the Foreign Minister to the American Minister expressing the horror and sorrow of the Persian Government and nation at the murder of Mr. Imbrie. It intimates that the Persian Government is completely willing to carry out the demands of the American note. It only regrets that Persia has no fleet, otherwise she would place a warship at the disposal of America for the conveyance home of Mr. Imbrie's remains. The question of proper compensation for the widow is being considered.

FAMINE RELIEF BODY RECEIVED FLOOD REPORTS

Propose To Take Airplane Photographs Of Inundated Areas

Peking, July 28.—Mr. W. H. Mallory, executive secretary of the China International Famine Relief Commissions obtained permission of the authorities to take pictures of the flooded area, by airplane yesterday afternoon, but weather conditions have delayed him. It is hoped that the pictures will be taken as soon as weather permits.

The following is a recapitulation of reports on flood conditions, received at the head office of the C.I.F.R.C.

NINGTSING

The incessant rains have caused the crops in the neighborhood of the river to be inundated, but so far only slight damage has been caused.

TANGHSIEN

Executive rainfall from July 8 to the 15, flooded the low-lying area around the river, and slightly destroyed the crops in the higher land of the district. The condition, as a whole, is not yet very serious.

ANHSIN

Continuous rainfall at the beginning of this month and the big storm on the 10th made the river rise to a height of over 10 feet. In the night of the 17th, the south dyke and several places in the dyke at Santaitsun collapsed, but they were immediately repaired.

CHINHSIEN

Owing to the continuous rainfall at the beginning of the month and the down-pour on the 13th, the river rose suddenly. The dyke at Changlitsun broke with a width of over 100 feet, and the dyke at Fengtsun also broke with a width of over 200 feet. The neighboring villages like Yukiachuang, Shanli, and Tahsha were flooded. Countless numbers of crops and houses were either swept out or destroyed. The breaks are now repaired. The food supply is running short, immediate relief being expected.

YUNGCHENG

Owing to the wind storms and torrential rains from July 10 to the 12 the upper Chumaho has suddenly risen to a height of over 200 feet, inundating the northwestern villages. Four breaks have been made in the dykes at the lower Tachingho, Wanghsiangwu, and Shupakow; each break is about 80 feet wide. All the neighboring villages have been inundated, and over 1,500 rooms destroyed. Grains and property have mostly been washed away. The condition is very serious.

The storms on the 15th and the 20th made both the Nanchuho and the Pingpacho break through their dykes, and also made worse the break in the dyke at the Tachingho. The villages in the vicinity of these rivers have been seriously affected. Besides, there are 40 more villages inundated. Immediate relief is needed, the local magistrate has appealed to the Civil Governor for relief funds.

CHINGHWAYUAN

The incessant rains during the first half month have made the river rise to a height of over ten feet—about three feet higher than the ground level.

The water remains high, and is expected to go down in about a week's time. Many houses have been destroyed.

SIYUAN

Some water is accumulated in the low-lying area due to the continuous rain, but there is no flood.

SHANSAN

Incessant rains have flooded the place; the water is about two feet above the ground, but it is going down. Many houses have been destroyed. The natives are very poor, and the flood has made their condition worse.

T. Y. Yang, assistant engineer of the China International Famine Relief Commission left for Kalgan this morning to distribute grain appropriated by the executive committee. He is to organise a local international committee and if possible to begin operation of the committee with the grain now being sent there.

make a decree of dissolution of partnership); the defendant thereupon left the office, wrote his letter of the same date and never returned. It is clear that he thereby withdrew and so brought the partnership to an end, and the clause into play. So far as any "consent" to his withdrawal was given, it is clear that it was only given to a withdrawal on the terms of the original agreement. The clause means "should David leave the partnership before the expiry of the 10 years fixed for any cause whatever' I can't help remarking that, if he were to leave by mutual consent, I do not doubt that the terms would be embodied in that consent.

TERMS OF WITHDRAWAL

"Now the terms of his withdrawal are there laid down:—

(1) Return of his capital: Tls. 25,000.

(2) Non-return of his premium: Tls. 20,000 or.

(3) Any other sums paid.

"It is the last words that are hard to construe, but I have come to the conclusion that the whole clause refers to payments to be made to the defendant in the event of his withdrawal. It is in the nature of the penalty he is under for not remaining for the full term; it is the credit side of his account with the co-partners. The missing words therefore are 'to him'. He was to get back his original capital only, but no part of his premium, and no other sums were to be paid to him. Whether those words would cover his share of profits for the period between the last division and his withdrawal it is not necessary to decide (I am inclined to think they would), for it is known there are none. But they certainly do not entitle him to leave the partnership as and when he likes and demand his capital back and with that close his connection with the firm altogether and escape from the ordinary liability of a partner to share in the losses. They do not relieve him from the necessity of an account and its consequences in the event of a loss, and I am glad the view of the parties at the time as shown by the correspondence is the true view, each side thought an account was necessary, and it was not until the pleadings were delivered that it was suggested that no account need be taken because of the wording of this clause. There must be an account taken, and David must bear his share in the loss.

THE SPUNT DEBT

"As to what is known as the Spunt debt, one due from the firm to Messrs. Spunt & Co. in order to relieve Mr. A. B. Rosenfeld from the consequences of a restrictive covenant into which he had entered and payable out of profits only: it is expressly stated that the defendant's liability for this was only "as long as the agreement remains in force". Again I do not see why these words should not mean what they say. This agreement was not in force after February 18, 1924, owing to the withdrawal of the defendant, a position contemplated in the agreement, but not mentioned in the clause dealing with this debt. Again, I see no reason to extend the liability beyond what the words say and therefore there is no further liability in this matter, as between the partners, after February 18, 1924.

"As to the premium: the defendant had the right to pay this (Tls. 20,000) in four instalments. He has paid 2 only. Is he liable to bring the other two instalments into the account? They are payable in May, 1924 and May, 1925. To my mind the intention of the parties was for a payment of Tls. 20,000. For convenience of all parties it was to be spread over four years, but it seems to me that the defendant cannot be heard to say that he is not to pay the unpaid part of this premium, merely because he has of his own motion withdrawn from the partnership and so brought it to an end. It is part of the penalty that he is under for not remaining for the full 10 years.

FUTURES CONTRACTS

"One other matter remains: There were on February 12, or 18, 1924 certain contracts in existence for what are known as 'cotton futures.' These showed some slight loss at the time of the withdrawal according to market prices, but the plaintiffs, who on the withdrawal were left in charge of the business, did not close them till a later date when they showed a considerable loss. The plaintiffs urge that the defendant must take his share of this loss, the defendant on the other hand contends that these contracts, being an asset, must for the purposes of a dissolution account be valued as at the date of the dissolution. I fail to see that the plaintiff's action was in any way wrong in holding these contracts open, hoping no doubt for a turn in the market in their favor. It was never the contention of the defendant in the correspondence that the position now put forward on his behalf was the correct one. He then claimed his share in any profits and admitted his liability for any loss. I cannot see why he should be allowed to insist on the valuation of these contracts as at he date of his withdrawal on a date of his own choosing, and so escape the ordinary liabilities of a partner.

"There must be an account on the lines above laid down and the plaintiffs are successful in their claims save in respect of the Spunt debt."

Soviet Consulate Opens Officially On Next Monday

The flag of Soviet Russia will fly for the first time in Shanghai over the Russian Consulate on Monday, according to semi-official information received here yesterday. The new Consul-General, Mr. Elleder, is still transacting his official business at 14 Kiukiang Road, but will move over to the consulate on August 4 when all his effects will have been removed from the present quarters to the permanent house.

SULLIVAN—LIPSCOMB

Miss Bess Lipscomb, daughter of Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb of Nashville, Tenn., and technician at the Margaret Williamson Hospital, was married to Mr. Philip Beach Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Sullivan of Detroit, at a ceremony performed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the Rt. Rev. F. R. Graves, Bishop of Shanghai, in St. John's Pro-Cathedral. Mr. Sullivan is acting head of the department of economics at St. John's University.

Miss Frances C. Sullivan, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. Mr. Robert T. Pollard, best man, and Prof. Donald Roberts and Mr. Maurice E. Botaw, all of St. John's University, ushers.

The bride's gown was of ivory crepe satin with a Spanish lace overdress. She wore an ivory net veil, caught with orange blossoms. The maid of honor wore brocaded pale pink georgette crepe.

An informal reception followed the ceremony at the home of Professor and Mrs. W. M. Porterfield, of St. John's.

The bridal couple will spend their honeymoon at Kuling, and will be at-home at St. John's after September 1.

This pair of Red Lacquer Vases were made in the Ming Dynasty in the reign of the Emperor Hsuan Te, 1426. A. D. They are stated to have been presented to the late Marquis Tseng Kuo-fan for meritorious services rendered during the Taiping Rebellion in 1851-1856. They were purchased by the present owner at Changsha in 1918 from a member of the late Marquis Tseng's family, where they had been kept as an heirloom for over sixty (60) years. The reason for their sale was due to the critical situation prevailing throughout the province of Hunan owing to repeated change of Government since the advent of the Republic. The owners being afraid to retain them any longer for fear of loosing them on the entry of the Northern Government troops under General Chang Ching Yao in 1918.

His offence, however, was a purely political one, and he must have imagined himself safe in Mongolia.

A Canton despatch to Peking tells of the difficulty that has arisen over the premises formerly occupied by the Russian Consulate in the British Concession of Shameen. When the Soviets desired to take it over along with the Consulates elsewhere in China, the fact came out that it had been forfeited to the municipality for the failure to pay back rates and taxes. The property is now rented to a French concern and it is not seen how it can be handed back to Russia. The question is further complicated by the fact that the Canton authorities fail to recognise the Sino-Russian Agreement signed in Peking whereby Russian State property was to be returned.

Hill Knocks Garcia Cold With Terrific Uppercut In Third Round At The Carlton

Johnny Hands Fellow Countryman A Beating He Will Not Soon Forget; Favacho Fails To Do Much Against The Ancient And Ponderous Iron Bux; Good Prelims

By Westa

The final event on last night's boxing program at the Carlton had a thudden ending. The thud, which was propelled by Johnny Hill's left hand, caught Senor Garcia squarely on the point of the chin, which was very thad for the Senor.

This was early in the third round. During the first round the two scrappers had fiddled about the ring, feeling each other out; but in the second round they went at it for keeps. And suddenly, before anybody expected it Johnny connected. Johnny had just darted at Garcia with a right lead and as Leonardo started to counter Hill caught him coming in with a left uppercut that was by long odds the hardest and cleanest clout ever delivered in Louie's ring.

It lifted Garcia completely off the floor and dropped him flat on his back. If Garcia had been standing still with his hands tied behind him Johnny couldn't have hit him any harder than he did, and as for Garcia, he wouldn't have been knocked flatter or worse hurt if a train had run into him.

GARCIA KNOCKED OUT

The blow, while it didn't knock Garcia cold, left him completely silly. He lay prone for a moment and then tried to get up. He managed to get to his feet and then staggered drunkenly to the ropes, where he hung on, his head in a daze. Johnny waited until his hands were off the floor and then plastered him again, and down he went. This process was repeated two or three times when the bell rang.

During the interval Garcia's seconds worked over him frantically and as the third round began he danced around in a lively manner that gave the impression that his head was clearing, and that he might be able to stall along until his senses returned.

But Johnny gave him no chance. Merciless and fighting like a tiger Johnny went after him, flooring him time and again until Referee Matty Smith seeing the futility of letting the bout go further, declared Hill the winner.

Hill proved in this scrap that he is by far the best of the string that Jack Saunders bought up from Manila. When Garcia entered the ring last night he was trained to the minute and lightning fast. In the first round he was absolutely catlike in his movements, so fast and agile that nobody dreamed that Johnny could get to him so quickly. Johnny is no slouch himself in the matter of speed, but Garcia seemed to have it all over him in that respect, which made the abrupt ending of the bout all the more surprising.

HILL DECEPTIVE

Hill, however, has a style that is as effective as it is deceiving. Johnny never seems to make much effort in the ring, but that is because his quickness is in his head, rather than in his arms and legs, although they are quick enough when he calls on them for a show of speed. Johnny is a perfect judge of distance, and has the very essential factor of timing down to a fine art. He doesn't strike until his objective is exactly in range, and then, with head and shoulders rolling with the punch, he lets fly with every thing he has in stock.

That was what happened last night. Garcia, in attempting to counter against Johnny's light right tap (Hill is left handed and leads with his right) moved exactly into position for Johnny's deadly left, which he was holding, coiled like a steel spring, ready for action.

That left was unleashed like a thunderbolt when Garcia's chin bobbed for a fraction of a second in front of it. Shooting out and slightly up it caught Leonardo with every ounce of force that Hill could put behind it, which was plenty, as Leonardo will confess when he regains consciousness next week. It was a fearful wallop, and except for the fact that Garcia, in addition to being in perfect condition, has the faculty of absorbing punishment, it would have knocked him cold.

As showing that Garcia was actuated solely by fighting instinct in his efforts to get going after the big punch, he didn't know enough to stay down for counts of nine when Hill floored him repeatedly, although half the crowd was yelling at him to do so. And when the bell rang he wandered aimlessly about the ring, so that his seconds had to run out and lead him to his corner. After the bout ended he sat in his corner several minutes while his seconds worked over him, still dazed.

IRON BUX TOO SLOW

The semi-final gave Iron Bux the chance he had long been clamoring for, and after looking him over one wondered where he got that stuff about offering to take on any two welter-weighis in Shanghai, one after the other. Bux may have been a good fighter in his day, but he is too old and fat now. Favacho got the decision, but that isn't saying much for him. He should have knocked Bux for a loop in the first half of the first round.

The prelims were very good. In the first one Panama Siki defeated Ma Ching on points, and in the next Flores won from Forral. In both these scraps there was more action than there are leaks in a fish net.

The crowd was the best that has ever turned up at the Carlton.

LAWN BOWLS

The following members of the Yangtszepoo Lawn Bowls Club have been selected to play in the match versus Junior Golf Club at Hongkew Park on Sunday, August 3, at 4 p.m.

W. T. Bissett (Skip), A. McMurdo, A. Raitt and A. Havtorm.

J. Tomlinson (Skip), H. Roebuck, E. Kirby and D. Ramsay.

G. Johnston (Skip). R. C. Aitkenhead, J. E. Harvey and W. Bailey.

A. Cheetham (Skip), A. McLeod, D. McKenzie and F. Ferrier.

Reserves: F. Baker, J. Evans, J. Drysdale and J. S. Chisholm.

Members are requested to be on greens at 3:45 p.m.

B. W. A. Notes

The secretarial office will be open only from 9-12 each day during August but all the other rooms will be available as usual.

NEW MEMBERS

As there will not be another meeting of the executive committee until September no election of members can take place. Pending their election however applicants for membership duly introduced by members of the association are cordially invited to avail themselves of the B. W. A. Headquarters, 12 Kiukiang Road.

A CORRECTION

Owing to a misunderstanding, it was announced at the last general meeting that special terms had been offered to members of the B. W. A. by the manager of the Burlington Hotel. It has since been ascertained, however, that these do not apply to those already in residence there, and there are, at the most, only three bedrooms available at these rates.

ART SECTION

Members are notified that the Thursday afternoon meetings of the Art Section are cancelled for the time being but that they will be resumed some time in September, the actual date will be given in these notes later on.

A Family Necessity

Every family should be provided with Chamberlain's Pain Balm at all times. Sprains may be cured in much less time when promptly treated. Lame back, lame shoulders, pains in the side and chest and rheumatic pains are some of the diseases for which it is especially valuable. It can be purchased everywhere.

CONSTABLE IN ASSAULT CASE SENT TO JAVA

Chinese Consul At Java Is Asked To Retain Lawyer To Hold Brief

The Chinese Consul-General in Java was telegraphically asked yesterday to retain the services of a lawyer to hold a watching brief on behalf of the maid of Wang Yao-an, of Bubbling Well Road who charges a foreign constable of the Shanghai Municipal Police with assault. The constable, who is of Dutch nationality, was sent to Java under two police escorts last week after a preliminary examination in local Dutch Consulate.

The complainent alleges that early one morning, the constable broke into the house and committed a serious offence against her. Police found the accused inside the maid's room when he was arrested. The local consulate considered that the alleged offence was too serious a crime for it to try and decided to hand him over to the higher court in Java.

Since the maid hails from Ningpo and her master is a Soochow man, the Ningpo Association and the Soochow Guild on Tuesday held a joint meeting to discuss the case. While the meeting considered the development of the case satisfactory under the present circumstances when foreigners in China enjoy extraterritorial rights, it was pointed out that legal representation should be made when the case comes to trial in the Java Court. A precedent was established in 1912 when a Japanese, charged with the attempted murder of two Chinese, was sent to Nagasaki for trial. A Japanese lawyer was retained and held a watching brief throughout the proceedings. This was agreed upon and instructions were given to the Chinese Consul yesterday.

The meeting also decided to ask the police to furnish the organisations with all available records of the case in order to forward them to the attorney in Java. Mr. Yih Shao-yin, a local Chinese attorney, was requested to call on Commissioner of Foreign Affairs Hsu Yuan to report on the decisions that had been arrived at during the meeting.

Japan Will Launch New Navy Dirigible

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 25.—At Kasumigaura on the 28th inst. the newly constructed naval dirigible Astra No. 2 will be launched. It will carry a crew of twenty, and is to replace that destroyed at Yokosuka some years ago in an explosion.

Peking, July 31.—Lu Ching refuses to give up the command of the Ninth division. Tsao Kun therefore is approaching Wang Huai-ching with the view of his giving up the command of the 13th to Tsao Yin. In that case, Wang Wei-cheng will command the 26th and Sun Ao, the third.

Madame Wellington Koo has arrived in Peking in safety. Dr. Koo has wired to the Governor of Hongkong, expressing his appreciation for the latter's courtesy.

Chao-Hsin Chu, the Charge D'Affaires at London, has telegraphically inquired about the complaints to be brought against the Banque de L'Indo-Chine and the Yokohama Specie Bank. The joint reply of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and that of Finance was to the effect that Chu may first threaten action. If this proves to be ineffective, then the details of the complaints will be wired to him.

KURAHARA WILL SHOW HIS CURIOS HERE TOMORROW

Mr. Korehiro Kurahara, traveler, philosopher and an ex-Parliamentarian of the Japanese Diet, was the host at a dinner given last night to Japanese and Chinese journalists at the Great Eastern Hotel. Views were exchanged on various Sino-Japanese questions.

Mr. Kurahara, who is accompanied by his family, will sail for Europe next week. He is one of the best known curio collectors in Japan and has brought part of his China collection with him on the trip. He will exhibit this collection on Saturday and Sunday at the Japanese Club, to which admission will be free.

Coolie Loses Life In Cleaning Sewer

While working in a sewer back of the Sincere store early yesterday morning, a Municipal contractor's coolie was overcome by the fumes. He was pulled out of the manhole by fellow workers and sent to Shantung Road Hospital but life was found to be extinct on his arrival there. The victim was only in the manhole about two minutes, according to witnesses, and investigation by the police showed that a lighted candle was extinguished, presumably by the fumes, when lowered into the sewer.

AUSTRALIA DUE HERE ON SUNDAY; TO BRING MAIL

With a full passenger list and a very heavy cargo besides over 500 bags of mail, the Empress of Australia will arrive at Woosung at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and sail for Hongkong and Manila the next morning at 11 o'clock. The last tender will leave the Customs Jetty at 7:30 a.m. Another Canadian Pacific liner, the Empress of Russia, is expected to arrive at the China Merchants Lower wharf from Hongkong at noon tomorrow and will leave for Vancouver on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

The Dollar liner, President Garfield, which arrived in port Tuesday is sailing this morning at 9 o'clock for Boston and New York via Suez from the Standard Oil Wharf. The last tender is due to leave the Customs Jetty at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

Following the Empress of Australia, the next mail from America will probably be brought by the President Jefferson, which is due in port next Wednesday or Thursday while the Pacific Mail steamer President Wilson is expected in Shanghai on August 13 and will sail for Hongkong and Manila on the following day.

Russian Seaman Is Fined $ 3 For Striking Constable

William Ford, unemployed Russian seaman, 18 years old, appeared in the Mixed Court yesterday charged with assaulting a Chinese constable in the Public Gardens Wednesday night. The constable stated that the Gardens Watchman had called him, stating that the accused refused to leave, though it was 1 a.m. and the watchman wished to lock the gates. He refused to remove from a bench and struck the witness. The accused said he was out of work and had no place to sleep. He did not understand what the constable said to him and he only struck the policeman after the latter had pushed him. Assessor Jacobs and Magistrate Sung ordered Ford to pay a fine of $3 or to jail for 3 days.

New Problem Looms In Settlement Of Borders Of Erin

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 31.—On the eve of the recess the Government is suddenly confronted with a political problem of the first magnitude arising from the reported decision of the Privy Council that the Boundary Commission cannot legally be constituted without a representative of Ulster appointed by the North Ireland Government. The opinion is expressed in Parliamentary circles that fresh legislation must be introduced to deal with the question for a solution of which Mr. Cosgrave is pressing. As it is impossible to pass such a Bill before the recess unless unanimity is previously secured, the Cabinet has decided to call a round-table conference of the Party leaders and the British signatories to the Irish Treaty.

Naval Manoeuvers Planned By Japan

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 20.—Naval manoeuvers on an extensive scale and lasting more than a month are being planned for this year, to make up for the absence of any such display for the past two years owing to the naval reduction program and to last September's quake.

The seat of operations extends over 600 miles from the Bungo Channel (between Shikoku and Kyushu) to the Pacific Ocean southeast of Kyushu. The standing squadrons, as well as the reserve fleet, will participate.

Treasure Trove Claim Of 'Barrow Coolie Is Given Substantiation

Treasure trove, was the answer given by Ting Keu-san, wheelbarrow coolie, when they charged him in the Mixed Court yesterday with larceny by finding in respect to 3,650 coppers of the realm. Ting was taken into custody when he went to an exchange shop and desired to have the ten-cash pieces translated into silver, the exchange shop keeper growing suspicious and calling a policeman.

Ting's explanation for his possession of so great wealth was that he had gone in bathing in a pond off Singapore Road and struck his foot against something painfully hard. This turned out to be the bundle of coins, which he retrieved from the water.

A foreign police constable who investigated testified that Ting's story was entirely feasible as the coins when brought to the station were wet and all turned green. The Court dismissed the charge against the accused and ordered the coppers kept at the police station for three days. If not claimed they are to be turned over to the finder.

Are Women More Mercenary Than Men?

BY LUCIAN CARY

Men believe that women care altogether too much about money; that women are mercenary. And their belief has this much truth in it: women do care more about money than men do.

Women believe that men have proper sense of responsibility about money, and want money only so they can spend it like drunken sailors. And their belief has this much truth in it: men have no such conserving sense of money as women have.

There are exceptions. There are women who are as reckless with money as any sailor who ever lived. And there are men who are so careful about money that they are painful to contemplate. But these individuals are not characteristic.

The diametrically opposed attitudes of men and women about money are plain enough in marriage—and plainer still in the business of choosing partners which precedes marriage.

The normal girl is quite incapable of considering marriage without considering the man's income. She wants a man who earns plenty of money, whether in her vocabulary plenty means thirty dollars a week or three thousand.

The normal man is incapable of considering whether he has enough money to marry until he is forced to—usually after he has proposed to the girl.

JOHN ANALYZES JANE

If he has plenty of money he may not discover how much more realistic her view of money is until after he is married. But—and this is the usual case—when he hasn't plenty of money the matter is going to be brought to his attention. When it is, he is more likely than not to refuse to to conclude that women are mercenary.

Of course if he has really fallen in love with the girl he has to repress the feeling that she is mercenary. He goes about it this way:

Mary Jane is perfect.

Perfect girls are not mercenary.

Therefore, Mary Jane is not mercenary.

SALARY AND MERIT

Having convinced himself that Mary Jane lives on some plane so far above this, our world, that the realities of money do not exist for her, he proceeds to convince her that he is going to make twice as much money as he ever has, three times as much, ten times as much. What is more, he usually succeeds. I mean he succeeds in convincing her.

Why do so many men succeed in convincing women that they are going to make plenty of money when (nine times out of ten) they don't and can't and won't.

For two reasons. First, because the women want to believe it. Second, because the number of women in our society is almost precisely equal to the number of men. Which is another way of saying that the average woman has to marry the average man. Most women have to marry prospectuses or nothing.

But other things being equal, a woman not only chooses to marry a man with a good income in perference to a man with a poor income; she actually falls in love with him. You say: "Of course—other things being equal—only, other things seldom are equal." No—other things seldom are equal. The chances are that the man with a good income has the other advantages as well. By and large, a good salary is evidence of other merits in a man.

Our economic system presents every sort of injustice and absurdity. It is possible to point out men drawing ten thousand a year who aren't worth shooting and men out of a job who are first-rate stuff. But, bad as it is, our economic system isn't so bad that the men who are chronically out of a job are better than the men who are chronically in first-rate jobs. The presumptions—all the presumptions—are in favor of the man who earns money.

MONEY'S MEANING

Earnings are the only measure of ability we have, except in the transcendent cases. No one seriously believes that a mere millionaire is a better or abler or more desirable man than the late William James, or than young Dr. Banting who recently discovered insulin, or Chaliapin. But in the absence of sheer high merit as an artist, a scientist, a teacher, a statesman, a journalist—we use money as a measure.

Women are attracted by ability in men and then choose men who can earn money, not so much because money means what our grandfathers used to call creature comforts, but because it means ability. Men are not attracted by earning capacity in women. It is the last thing they look for—and the first thing they run away from should they chance to find it.

But there is another attitude toward money in which women are fundamentally different from men. To women money means security. Some men, particularly men who have reached the age of discretion, value money as security. But the normal man has a very great confidence in his ability to take care of himself whatever happens. His confidence may be misplaced. Men do fall ill; men are crippled; men are thrown out of jobs in periods when jobs are hard to come by. Nevertheless, the predicament of a man who is broke is nothing to the predicament of a woman who is broke.

Many a makeshift is open to a man out of luck that is not open to a woman. She can't as easily sleep in a park or beat her way on a freight train or pick up an odd job and no references asked. And when she has children she is peculiarly helpless. It is in the nature of things that women have a greater regard for money, take more thought for the future, than men.

Some men want money—lots of money—millions—with a sharpnes of desire that is almost unknown among women. They want it because it means power. All men want power. They may not want it enough to get it. But they want it. They want to make their mark in the world. Only one man in a million or so has a chance to make his mark as an inventor, or scientist, or artist, or statesman. Ten times as many men have a chance—or believe they have a chance—to make their mark through money.

And because men have more highly developed egos than women, because they are more competitive on any scale larger than the domestic scale, they go in for making money as a game—usually to the great distress of their women-folk. Most women would rather be sure of a comfortable income than risk everything on the chance of making a million.

Women as a class will gamble in emotions—not in money. Men will gamble in money—not in emotions.

A MASCULINE PRIVILEGE

Women care more about money than men do, not because they are mercenary but by the necessity of their being. Women not only need to be conservative about money; they are trained and exhorted and required to be conservative about money. Women almost universally manage the expenditure of the family income—women buy nearly nine-tenths of the things that are bought for the home, including the greater part of the clothes their husbands wear. Extravagance in a woman is shameful. Nobody excuses it. Extravagance in a man is frequently honorific. It is a part of the accepted masculine gesture to spend money with a careless air.

Women—even women who earn good incomes in the working world—are slow to acquire this air of the sailor on leave. Successful business men, who charge extravagant entertaining to promotion and pride themselves on spending money freely for other men's lunches and taxicabs and Scotch, frequently observe that their wives are thrifty in entertaining their women friends. Of course they are. They have been brought up that way. Not one woman in a hundred dares risk the charge of extravagance—even in spending their own money. Spending money unnecessarily is a masculine privilege.

Yes, men have two universal charges against women. The first is that they are extravagant, and the second is that they are tightwads. Which seems absurd. It is absurd. It is just one more illustration of our utter inability to be honest about money. A student of applied psychology of my acquaintance tells me that all men lie consciously, half-consciously and unconsciously about their sexual lives. But they lie harder about money.

Dishonest (and unjust) as men are when they talk about women and money, their words are not wholly without meaning. When they say women are tightwards they are thinking of the way their wives check their own favorite large careless air about spending money. And when they say that women are extravagant they are thinking about women's clothes.

WHERE WOMAN WINS

It goes without saying that the women of this continent spend an amount of money on clothes that the climate does not account for. But I am not sure that they are any more responsible for it than we are. We have made it the business of women to attract men. They have to do it. And then we have so hedged them about with restrictions of propriety that they can hardly find any permissible way of doing it except by making themselves good to look at.

There is a standard diatribe against women that I have read and heard a great many times in the last ten years. It concerns the shop-girl who spends ten cents for lunch and two dollars for sheer silk stockings. This is supposed to prove the inherent depravity of women. I think it proves something quite different. I think it proves that the shop-girl wants a home and a husband and children and that she believes spendng her money on silk stockings is a more likely way of attaining the desired end than spending it on lunch.

The truth is that women are simply more realistic about money than men are. It comes hard to the sentimental male to discover that the girl who has got him has had one eye on his earning capacity all the time. He would much rather believe that she loves him for himself alone and not at all for what he can put over in the office. He may have spent most of his time for six months bragging to her about what he can do, has done, and will do. But that doesn't prevent him from resenting her natural concern about his prospects.

One of his ways of retaliating is to make fun of women's ways with money. He invents those yarns about women who can't make out a check or keep a bank account balanced. Nothing will induce him to make a simple, just and business-like arrangement with her by which she knows just here she is. A wife has a moral claim on her husband's income. But she can rarely get it openly recognized. She has to wangle it. Most women wheedle for money. That is, most husbands force their wives to wheedle for money.

If wheedling fails to get the money she wants and believes herself entitled to, she must resort to her great weapon, which is making the man feel guilty. It is a rare man who is so innocent that a clever woman can't make him feel guilty. Wholly innocent men have long since been wrapped around some woman's little finger for things less important than the rent and the milk bill.

An American-Born Pope Held Future Possibility

There is more than the flavor of an empty compliment—how much more, no one can say—in intimations from Rome that the possibility of the election of an American as Pope in the not distant future has been under discussion there recently in connection with the elevation of Cardinals Hayes and Mundelein. These reports have come from Italian sources.

The Roman Curia, that body of trained organizers which directs the world-wide activities of the Catholic Church through her bureaus, is not discounting, of course, the fact that if a new Pope were to be chosen tomorrow it is a virtual certainty he would be an Italian. At the same time it must be taken into account that well-informed clerics in the Eternal City are aware of some significant circumstances by no means fully comprehended elsewhere, except in limited circles, which indicate a widening of Americans in the Church.

There is nothing abhorrent to Catholics in the thought that a Cardinal of any nationality may be elected Pope. Holding their view that Providence guides the Church, it follows that to shrink from the manifestation of any of its inscrutable decrees would be false to Catholic teaching.

The pronounced patriotism of the American Cardinals who might happen to be in office at the time of a papal conclave would be no barrier to the elevation of any of them. Cardinal Hayes's service to his country in wartime, for instance, was on a plane with that of Cardinal Ratti, the present Pope, to Italy. In the Church's eyes, the duty to one's nation is a moral obligation, and the division of the world into nationalities as a part of the divine plan. Thus, while a Pope as Sovereign Pontiff is ultra-national, his individuality as a patriot is in conformity with Church precept.

AT THE NEXT CONCLAVE

Least of all do new anticpations, based upon the emhanced importance of Americans in the Church, mean that Catholics in this country have any thought of setting up a claim to the Papacy. Their tested orthodoxy, approved by all the Popes since the time of Archbishop Carroll, the co-worker of George Washington, may be accepted as proof that they will not seek to interrupt the orderly development of events which affect the decisions of a conclave called to elect a Pope.

One fact which stands out clearly in regard to the next conclave, whenever it may be summoned, is that for the first time in such a body the presence of an influential representation from the United States will be assured. Catholics both here and abroad have lamented that in former conclaves American influence has been either nonexistent or has been such as uncertain factor that it could not be taken into full consideration in the shaping of alignments among the Cardinals. This country has had one or more Cardinals continuously since 1875; but not until 1903 did any of them cast a vote in a conclave, and then it was a single vote. The former requirement that a conclave must begin on the tenth day after the death of a Pope, though ten days were not enough to permit an American to reach Rome under the usual condition of travel, was an obstacle of the first magnitude, as it was a part of the constitution of the Church.

Cardinal McCloskey of New York, the first American elected to the Sacred College, felt the full force of this difficulty when Pius IX. died in 1878. He hastened toward Rome, but had been able to proceed only as far as Paris when he was notified that Leo XIII. had been chosen by the conclave.

Cardinal Gibbons, the sole American in the college for twenty-five years after Cardinal McCloskey's death in 1885, determined that this experience should not be repeated in his case. When Leo XIII. was attacked by illness in 1903, the Baltimore prelate did not wait to be officially informed of the Pope's death before sailing for Europe. As soon as he ascertained that there was no hope of Leo's recovery, he set out and had already reached Paris when the Pope died. Thus he was enabled to be a full participant in the succeeding conclave. A fact full of possibilities for the future is that it was due to his direct influence that Pius X. was prevailed upon to accept election when the effort to persuade the modest patriarch of Venice to consent to his own elevation had been abandoned in despair by the other Cardinals.

When Pius X. died in August, 1914, broken by the shock of the World War, there was again one American vote in the conclave, that of Cardinal Farley of New York, who happened to be in Switzerland when his presence in Rome was required. There were then three American members of the Sacred College. The other two, Cardinals Gibbons and O'Connell, sailed for Naples on the day after Pius's death. Benedict XV. was elected after they had landed, but while they were on their way from Naples to the Eternal City.

PIUS CHANGES RULE

Pius XI. was elected Feb. 6, 1922, without any American participation. Although Cardinals O'Connell and Dougherty were entitled to vote in the conclave, both failed to reach Rome in time. The new Pontiff expressed to them his regret at the virtual exclusion of Americans from the voting by the circumstance of the physical distance of their sees from Rome. Less than a month after he succeeded to the papacy he caused to be promulgated the change in the Church constitution extending the time for a conclave to fifteen days after a Pope's death.

Thus in the next conclave, according to the present outlook, four American votes will be actually cast, those of Cardinals O'Connell, Dougherty, Hayes and Mundelein. As the membership of the Sacred College is usually kept at about sixty, it is evident that the votes and influence of the Americans must be reckoned with from the start.

If the Pope in the meanwhile should appoint two more Cardinals from this country, as it is rumored he is likely to do, the possibilities of the situation would be broadened. His emphasis in addresses at the elevation of Cardinals Hayes and Mundelein upon the extraordinary share of Americans in the worldwide charities and other works of benevolence conducted by the Church lends color to these rumors, although his intentions, of course, are not definitely known.

The membership of the Sacred College is now sixty-six, four below the limit. This membership is divided into an equal number of Italians and non-Italians. The thirty-three non-Italians include seven Frenchmen, seven Germans, four Americans, four Spaniards, two Englishmen, two Poles and one each from Ireland, Canada, Belgium, Hungary, Holland, Portugal and Brazil.

ITALIANS HOLD PAPACY

Inasmuch as there has been no reason save expediency for the choice of Italians as Popes, the question arises how far this expediency is still potent. Since the time of the "Babylonian exile" in 1305-77, when there was a succession of French Popes who, under powerful pressure from the kings of France, maintained the seat of the Papacy at Avignon, there has been a conviction in the Church that the independence of the Holy See and the unity of the faith require the election of Italian Pontiffs who will preserve a continuity of Church government in Rome. It is worth remembering, however, that this conviction first took root when Italy was a political no man's land, split into kingdoms, principalities and republics which were frequently shifting from one control to another, and when there was less of a sentiment of unified nationality in that country than in any other in Europe. The only fixed political power then in Italy was the Papacy. The Pope was secure in his independence and possessed full facilities for his spiritual mission.

Since 1870 this condition has been directly reversed. There is now a national feeling in Italy as strong and compact as anywhere in the world. So far as it is a purely national feeling, it has been, from 1870 to Mussolini's time, antagonistic to the Church. Recent Popes have not had cause to complain of being hampered or threatened in their independence by any other country, but against Italian encroachment their appeals have been earnest.

Catholics are as firm in their conviction now as in the fourteenth century that the seat of the Church must be maintained at Rome in order that the unity of the faith may be preserved. Excluding other non-Italians from consideration, the question may be asked whether the election of an American would impair that unity.

A primary consideration in this connection is that it is inconceivable that the United Staets Government, following the precedent of French kings long ago, would use political pressure to have the seat of the Papacy transferred to this country. It may be equally conceded that the United States Government would not attempt to control an American Pope in any way, or to interpose any obstruction to the full and free exercise of his spiritual prerogatives. The constitutional separation of Church and State in this country operates to protect the authorities of all Churches in the discharge of their legitimae functions and to prevent any trespass upon their spiritual activities. If there is now no such encroachment at home, it is not to be believed that there would be any probability of encroachment so far away as Rome. The popular uproar which would result if an American President should conceive such a project may be easily imagined.

It is also out of the question that an American Pope would wish to remove the papal seat from Rome to some European country other than Italy. In the case of an American, it is evident from every angle, the fear of another Avignon would be gone.

QUESTION OF ORTHODOXY

It may be asked in some quarters if an American Pope would be less orthodox than an Italian Pope in the sense of being predisposed, because of his nationality, to decentralize the Church or to introduce innovations. This consideration, if it should arise at a conclave, would tend to operate against the election of an American. It would scarcely arise except from misunderstanding due to lack of comprehension of America by Europeans which, though it once existed from the natural cause of remoteness, has long since been dispelled so far as the Catholic Church is concerned.

The unity of American Catholics as to questions of faith and morals with Catholics in other parts of the world is complete. When, a quarter of a century ago, some incorrect views prevalent in Europe as to opinions attributed to Catholics in the United States led to the letter of Leo XIII. to Cardinal Gibbons on "Americanism," the Pope expressly said that if any modification of Catholic doctrines were proposed "there can be no manner of doubt that our venerable brethren the Bishops of America would be the first to repudiate and condemn them." No such discussion has arisen since.

The practical possibility of the election of an American as Pope would depend upon divisions among the Italian Cardinals. A two-thirds vote is required to elect in a papal conclave, and if the Italians should stand solidly together for one of their own number, under present conditions, they would need eleven non-Italian votes in order to make their decision effective.

If a division of the Italians should come—and it has occurred often in the past—they might be more likely to turn to an American Cardinal than one of any other nationality, for two reasons. One of these reasons is that American contributions are now the greatest single source of the Church's revenue for spiritual work. The other is that if a non-Italian is to be chosen, an American Pope, while he would probably be freer from pressure by his own Government than a Pope of any other nationality, would also be entitled to the most powerful protection in his rights as a citizen of his own country.

Until the Papacy is generally recognized as an independent territorial power the Pope is virtually a subject of the King of Italy, against which he vehemently protests. If a new Pope should be an American, he would have a claim, as a citizen of the United States, to all the protection which any American can receive in his rights of citizenship. Thus, at least in theory, he could not be seized or imprisoned arbitarily or subjected to any other personal indignity, nor could his property be unjustly taken away without his country throwing its weight behind measures for obtaining his rights. Washington showed its attitude on this question in 1884, when its protest caused the Italian Government to forego seizure of the property of the American College in Rome.

MOTHER OF 11 CHILDREN
Tells Why Baby's Own Tablets Are Always Kept In Her House

The reason why Mrs. Mary J. Pepin, like so many other mothers, always keeps Baby's Own Tablets ready at hand is because she has found them to be the safest, most convenient, agreeable and efficacious of all medicines for the common ills of her children.

Writes this American mother, who lives at No. 18 Cary Hill, Willimantic, Conn;—"I think Baby's Own Tablets one of the best laxatives I have ever given the children and they like to take them. When my little ones have colic I give them Baby's Own Tablets and they get relief at once. I would not be without the Tablets in the house for I have eleven children and the Tablets are my remedy to keep them in health."

Infants and little children need medicine specially made for them and this is exactly what Baby's Own Tablets are. These Tablets quickly reduce simple fevers, relieve indigestion, colic, croup and colds, prevent constipation, check diarrhoea, alleviate teething pains, expel worms, quickly bring sound health-restoring sleep in a natural way. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

What The Chinese Papers Are Saying

Peking, July 30.—The Administrative Committee of the Lower House at its meeting today decided to devote the entire session of the Lower House on Friday to the deliberation over the election of Dr. W. W. Yen as premier. On the other hand, the anti-government solons are prepared to change the agenda on Friday by motions for the impeachment of Yen and for the abolition of the present Cabinet which, they maintain, is illegal. —Eastern Times.

Peking, July 30.—The Ministry of Communications has been informed that passenger traffic along the Peking-Hankow Railway will be resumed on August 3 and the usual schedules will be observed ten days after. Repairs on the Peking-Suiyuan Railway will be completed within two days.—Eastern Times.

Peking, July 30.—Dr. Wellington Koo has asked the various ministries to furnish his Bureau of Sino-Russian Affairs with statistics regarding the Chinese Eastern Railway, the Sino-Russian boundary and Russian currency so that he might refer these questions to his technical committees for consideration before bringing them forward at the coming Sino-Russian Parleys.—Eastern Times.

Peking, July 30.—Shantung representatives called on Minister of Foreign Affairs Wellington Koo today and inquired about the negotiations over the Weihaiwei rendition question. Koo, in reply, stated that the draft agreement with Great Britain still needed consideration and no definite date had been set for its signing.—Eastern Times.

Peking, July 30.—In a Circular telegram to the various provinces, the Director of the Tobacco and Wine Bureau, Wang Yu-chi, states today that negotiations with representatives of the British American Tobacco Company over the cigarette surtax are under way and matters are shaping up very well. The Bureau will offer a certain percentage of the surtax to the provinces, which are asked to send an authorised representative to Peking with the view to concluding the negotiations.—Sin Wan Pao.

Tientsin, July 30.—The former Russian barracks were handed over to Soviet Russia yesterday by the Bureau of Foreign Affairs. —Sin Wan Pao.

Secretary Mellon in Rum Quiz.

ANDREW W. MELLON.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon is shown as he appeared in New York City at the trial of Gaston B. Means, former detective, who was charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead act. Mr. Mellon admitted he owned an interest in the Overholt distillery in Pittsburgh, but denied that he knew the distillery had been under investigation since 1922.

TENDERS FOR ONE COMPLETE ASPHALT CONCRETE MIXING PLANT (STATIONARY)

The French Municipal Council of Shanghai invites tenders for supplying one complete asphalt concrete mixing plant (stationary) with a nominal capacity of 900 to 1,000 square meters per working day of 10 hours of asphalt paving 5 centimeters thick after compression.

The mixer must handle a complete batch of from 1200 to 1400 Kgs.

Tenders must contain:

1°—a complete description of the plant with illustrations giving dimensions;

2°—the kind of power used for driving the plant;

3°—in case the plant may be driven by steam, electricity, etc., the price for each type, if there is a difference.

A security of Tls. 500 must be forwarded with the tender. This sum will be returned to those whose tenders are not accepted.

Prices to be quoted C. I. F. & C.

Tenders, in sealed envelopes bearing the inscription "INSTALLATION DE BETON D'ASPHALTE," must be addressed to the Secretary not later than noon on Friday, the 31st October, 1924.

The Council does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

The plant must be delivered within four months after the order has been awarded, after which date the order may be cancelled, if the Council sees fit, and the security forfeited.

By order,
P. LEGENDRE,
Secretary.

BOATS GAIN ON RAILWAY IN SOOCHOW SHIPPING

Water Transportation Recovers Its Lost Tonnage

SILK COMES BACK

Public Sentiment Is Strongly In Favor Of Native Industries

In the competition between railway and water transportation between Shanghai and Soochow, the ships have regained their lost tonnage in the last ten years, according to the Decennial Reports of the Chinese Maritime Customs. The report says:

"The opening of the railway between Shanghai and Nanking in 1907-8 for a time acted as a serious deterrent to steam navigation from Soochow under both the General Regulations and the Inland Waters Rules; but during the decade under review, matters gradually adjusted themselves, and the figures that had fallen rose steadily up the scale until, in 1921, they reached the high level of 9,556 entrances and clearances."

The Nisshin Kisen Kaisha, operating under the Inland Waters Steam Navigation Rules, withdrew its steam-launch service to Soochow in April, 1915, as, owing to the anti-Japanese boycott, it was found useless to continue operations. In 1916 the figures for this trade increased by 10 percent, which showed that the Japanese loss had proved the Chinese gain, for not only did the latter replace the withdrawn fleet of the former, but also improved their own figures.

FIFTY CRAFT OPERATE

At the present time there are six steam-launch companies operating between Soochow and Shanghai, Soochow and Hangchow, Soochow and Wusih. The fleets of the six companies comprise about 50 craft, most of them propelled by steam.

American shipping at the port increased from 978 tons in 1912 to 1,200 tons in 1921; and Chinese shipping from 34,896 tons to 153,676 tons. British shipping in 1921 amounted to 816 tons.

In the ten years, the trade at Soochow increased over Hk. Tls. 8,000,000, about equally divided between imports and exports. During the decade the revenue reached its highest figure—Hk. Tls. 272,000 odd—in 1915, and reached its lowest one of Hk. Tls. 128,000 odd in 1913, but these latter figures are no fair criterion, as much of the revenue for 1913 was, owing to the first Revolution, collected for Soochow by the Shanghai Customs. The end of the decade showed a net total increase of some 24,000 taels. Import duties, however, fell from 24,600 to 2,000 taels; export duties increased by 35,000 taels; coast trade duties doubled themselves; tonnage dues remained more or less stationary; and transit dues (inwards—there are no dues outward at this port) increased from 3 taels to over 4,000 taels.

Raw silk, owing to the unrest engendered by the first revolution—1911-12—changed its age-old trade route from North Chekiang to Shanghai by junk to that of steam-launch via Soochow to Shanghai. The first Revolution had the further effect of not alone impelling vast numbers of wealthy Soochownese to flee to Shanghai through fear, but also, when they arrived there, induced them to adopt foreign garb in preference to their own costly and beautifully flowered silk brocades.

SILK INDUSTRY REVIVES

Those who adopted the new form of raiment, however, soon discovered that the change was not worth the candle, but in the meantime 3,000 of the 7,000 Soochow looms had become idle. In the following year, 1913, not only were the original 7,000 looms once more busy weaving brocades, but there was an addition of 2,000 engaged in weaving gauze. Moreover, the pendulum swung from intense admiration of all that was foreign to a perhaps super-appreciation of the native.

One result of the change in public sentiment was reflected during the World War, when cotton yarn that had been imported from Japan and other countries was produced at the local cotton mill. A similar change took place in the soap trade.

WORLD'S LONGEST PIPE LINE TO BE LAID SOON

Standard Oil Company Of New York Will Build Single Tube

Construction of what is planned to be the longest pipe line in the world will be started soon. This pipe line, intended for transportation of natural gas, will be laid as a continuous steel tube 210 miles long, without a coupling or a screw thread connection. It will stretch like a mighty snake from the great natural gas fields which lie east of Shreveport in Northern Louisiana, to the big oil refinery city of Beaumont at tidewater in Texas.

The pipe line is to be laid for the Magnolia Gas Co. This company was recently formed as a subsidiary of the Magnolia Petroleum Co., which is controlled by the Standard Oil Co. of New York, and has its main refinery at Beaumont. Gas sent through the pipe line will be the fuel for the refinery.

About 500 of the best pipe welders of the country are reported as having left various parts of the country for Louisiana to work on the big job. It is expected that these men will be at work for the entire summer before the job is finished. Oxy-acetylene welding will seal every joint of the great long tube, replacing the old method of screw couplings. The heavy investment necessary for this construction work is considered justified by the management of the Magnolia Petroleum, because the welded tube will reduce upkeep to almost to nothing. Also, it should mean a conserving of the large quantity of gas which is lost through leakage from a pipe line that is made with threaded joints. The upkeep of a pipe line using threaded joints, whether that line is for the carrying of oil or for gas, is often a highly costly affair, and calls for the work of emergency crews being frequent for the repairing of damage done by accidents that are not known with a welded line.

DIFFICULT CONSTRUCTION

The construction work for the Magnolia Gas Co.'s 210 miles of welded pipe has been laid out as a difficult campaign because the pipe line will cross two rivers and innumerable creeks, and will run underground through four counties. In some places it will pass through swamp lands, in other places through country that is heavily wooded, and in some places through very hilly country. The clearing of the right-of-way through the swamp districts and the heavily wooded territory is a big job in itself. Trees must be felled and the stumps removed. That work has already been started, the construction gangs operating north and south from Kirbyville, Texas, which lies about 40 miles northeast of Beaumont.

Some of the most difficult work preliminary to the construction and laying of the pipe line itself will be encountered at the two rivers which are to be crossed. They are the Sabiene River which separates Texas from Louisiana and the Natches River which flows southeastward in Texas, through Beaumont, and empties into Sabiene Lake at the Gulf of Mexico. Special stagings must be built at these rivers and also at the various creeks, so that the pipe may be joined, dragged into place and dropped to the bed of the streams.

The welding crews will operate at a number of points along the right-of-way. It has been decided to build the pipe line in straight sections of about 100 feet each. With that work accomplished, the sections will be "tied-in" to meet the contour of the country, carrying the great single tube uphill and down dale, and around obstructions where necessary. It is stated that a single welding crew in this way will account for from a half mile to a mile of steel tubing, painting and testing before putting it in the trench.

CAPACITY OF LINE

This is the first pipe line to be laid by the Magnolia Gas Co., that company having been organised a few months ago by the Magnolia Petroleum Co. under the laws of Delaware, with a capital stock of 100,000 shares of no par value. The northern end of the pipe line will be in the Webster gas field, east of Shreveport, Louisiana, in which field the Magnolia Petroleum has large acreage and production. The pipe line will cross the Sabine River into Panola County, Texas, tapping in that country another gas field in which the Magnolia Petroleum has also acquired acreage and production.

The plans for the pipe line would explain the reasons for negotiations whereby the Magnolia Petroleum recently added largely to its acreage in both the Webster and Panola County fields. It is reported that contracts have been made for sufficient additional gas to keep the line supplied to its full capacity, reported as 65,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day. The greater part of the 210 miles of pipe line will be constructed of 16-inch and 18-inch pipe.

FUEL FOR REFINERY

The large supply of cheap fuel which will be made available through this pipe line for the refinery of the Magnolia Petroleum at Beaumont will place that company in a position to move ahead on a broad expansion program planned for the refinery, and thereby place the Standard Oil Co. of New York in all the more formidable position for supplying oil to the latter's markets in north Atlantic states through shipments out of Beaumont in the tank steamships of the Standard Oil o New York.

The decision by the management of the Magnolia Gas Co. to have the new pipe line from the Shreveport natural gas district to Beaumont constructed as a welded tube was reached largely because of the success which has been met by various American oil companies in the use of welded pipe lines on a smaller scale. In addition to the construction of new pipe lines as welded systems, some of the large oil and gas companies have found the use of welding processes highly successful in the repairing of their old pipe lines. The Prairie Pipe Line Co., which is the largest pipe company in the world, was one of the first to turn to welded pipe lines in a big way.

Hongkong Stocks

Messrs. Moxon and Taylor state in their weekly share report dated Hongkong, July 18:

We have had a very firm market during the past week with a considerable business passing but at the close our market appears rather quieter, prices generally, however, are well maintained.

Shanghai market: — Cottons continue quiet with a small business passing; Shanghai Docks, however, were the medium of a fairly large business after a declaration of dividends.

The following are the principal alterations since last week:

Hongkong Banks:—Continue in good demand and could be placed at quotations.

Unions:—Are slightly easier and shares have changed hands at $225.

Hotels.—Are in good demand with buyers prevailing.

Hongkong Lands:—Have been the medium of a good business closing strong with buyers at $115½ for Settlement.

Humphreys.—After coming to business at $24, close with sellers at that rate.

Cements:—Have been the medium of a certain amount of business at $27 to $27¾ cash for combined shares, closing rather easier.

Wharves:—Have eased off a little but a good many shares have changed hands, closing with buyers at $197 cash.

Hongkong Docks:—Are firm with buyers at quotations.

Shanghai Docks:—After rising to a buying rate of Tls. 104, have declined to a selling rate of Tls. 100.

Ropes:—Are quiet with sellers prevailing.

Hongkong Trams:—Have again been the medium of a large business but at the close are easier with buyers at $43¼.

Peak Trams:—Are in strong demand and are wanted at quotations.

Silver Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand state in their exchange circular for the week ending July 30:

The price of silver in London has remained steady during the week and today's quotations of 34⅜d. spot and 34⅞d. forward are ⅛d. above those ruling last Wednesday; during the same period the price in New York has steadily advanced from 67⅝c. to 68¼c. Our official T.T. rate on London has followed the course of silver and is ½d. higher at 3/3½d. Locally the market has ruled steady, due chiefly to sales of yen and sterling T.T. by speculators. A few bills against silk and tea have been placed, but the demand still exceeds the cover available. We quote 3/3⅝d. July/Aug. 3/3½d. Sept. 3/3¾d. Oct./Dec.

Our stocks of silver are reported as follows:

Sycee and bar silver Tls. 42,172,000, a decrease of Tls. 5,000.

Chinese and Mexican dollars $51,130,000, an increase of $1,010,000.

Silver yen, Yen. 800,000.

Estimated value Tls. 51,034,000 as against Tls. 49,518,000 held at this time last year.

Rubber Auctions

Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Co. have received the following telegram dated 30th inst., from their Singapore Agents:

Singapore Rubber Auction Report

Average prices:

Sheet 43 cents.

Crepe 42¼ cents.

Catalogued 721 tons.

Sold 405 tons.

Market steady.

London quotation 1/-¼d.

Market steady but quiet.

Says Soviet Did Not Ask Rail Loan

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—In the House of Commons today Sir Leonard Lyle (Conservative) asked whether the Soviets had directly or indirectly advanced a proposal for a loan in this country on the ultimate guarantee of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Mr. Arthur Ponsonby declared that no such proposal had been submitted to the Government.

How The U.S. Quota Immigration Law Is To Be Applied

ON July 1 President Coolidge issued a proclamation putting the new American "Quota" Immigration Law into effect and in view of the interest which the new legislation has aroused in this part of the world, it is timely to refer to some of its interesting provisions as it affects immigration from the various countries. The exact number of immigrants from the various countries which are to be permitted to enter the United States during the coming year are covered in the President's proclamation as follows:

Country or Area of Birth.	Quota, 1924-1925
Afghanistan	100	Narau (proposed British mandate .	100
Albania	100	Nepal	100
Angorra	100	Netherlands	1,648
Arabian Peninsula	100	New Zealand (including appertaining island	100
Armenia	124	Norway	6,453
Australia, including Papua, Tasmania, and all islands appertaining to Australia	121	New Guinea and other Pacific islands under proposed Australian mandate	100
Austria	785	Palestine (with Trans-Jordania, proposed British mandate)	100
Belgium	512	Persia	100
Bhutan	100	Poland	5,982
Bulgaria	100	Portugal	503
Cameroon ..... (proposed British mandate)	100	Ruanda and Urundi (Gelgium mandate)	100
Cameroon ..... (French mandate)	100	Rumania	603
China	100	Russia, European and Asiatic	2,248
Czecho-Slovakia ..	3,073	Samoa, Western proposed mandate of New Zealand. .	100
Danzig, Free City of	2.228	San Marino	100
Denmark	2,789	Siam	100
Egypt	100	South Africa, Union of	100
Esthonia	124	Southwest Africa (proposed mandate of Union of South Africa) ..	100
Ethiopia (Abyssinia)	100	Spain	131
Finland	471	Sweden	9,561
France	3,954	Switzerland	2,081
Germany	51,227	Syria and the Lebanon (French mandate)	100
Great Britain and Northern Ireland .	34,007	Tanganyika (proposed British mandate)	100
Greece	100	Togoland (French mandate)	100
Hungary	473	Turkey	100
Iceland	100	Yap and other Pacific islands (under Japanese mandate)	100
India	100	Yugoslavia	671
Irak ..... (Mesopotamia)	100
Irish Free State .	28,567
Italy, including Rhodes, Dodekanesia and Castellorizzo	3.845
Japan	100
Latvia	142
Liberia	6,100
Liechtenstein ...	100
Lithuania	100
Luxemburg	100
Monaco	100
Morocco (French and Spanish zones and Angier) ...	100
Muscat (Oman) .	100

It should be noted at the outset that the figures noted above have no political significance. They were worked out by the Secretaries of State, Commerce and Labor and conform to the provisions of the new law, which states "that the number of persons entering the United States during the year 1924-25 must be limited to 2 per cent. of the number of foreign-born individuals of that nationality resident in the United States as determined by the census of 1890, but the minimum quota of any nationality shall be 100."

In respect to countries such as China and Japan, where absolute restriction upon the immigration of laborers is regulated by law, the minimum quota of 100 is available only for "persons born within those countries who are eligible to citizenship in the United States and admissible under the immigration laws of the United States." From the standpoint of immigrants subject to the "quota," or, in other words, eligible to citizenship in the United States who happen to be born in a colony, dependency or protectorate of any country to which a quota applies, they will, in accordance with the law, be charged to the quota of that country. Immigrants born in the British self governing dominions or in India will be charged to the appropriate quota rather than to that of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The law makes no mention of a quota for either Canada or Newfoundland .

From the standpoint of grand divisions of the earth's surface the largest quota given to any country is Germany, with 51,227. Next is 34,000 for those born in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, while the Irish Free State is third with 28,567. Italy receives a quota of 3,845, France 3,954, Norway 6,453, Sweden 9,561, Switzerland 2,081, Poland 5,892, while Russia, including both European and Asiatic divisions, receives a quota of 2,248.

Evening Suits Of Tyrian Purple

IN accordance with the unwritten tradition of the silly season, which ordains that at this time of the year nonsensical screeds should be sent to the newspapers to beguile the shining hour, a heated controversy has been raging in Shanghai on the subject of sartorial niceties in which pink shirts have been mentioned for men's evening dress. About once in so often, rumor, which, said the immortal Shakespeare, is a pipe blown by surmise, whistles it about that the styles for men are soon to be colorful, so that elevators in office buildings will resemble nothing else so much as hanging gardens in Babylon. "The revolution in question," says the rumor now current, "is to consist of a renaissance of Georgian costume for men's daily wear, and suits of Tyrian purple, jade green, orange, and royal blue for evening. According to an American contemporary, this is specific, especially the evening suits of Tyrian purple, jade green, orange, and royal blue, although one is left to wonder whether the orange will be burnt or push-cart. Nor, for that matter, would men go much more colorfully clad in the evening than they now go at week-ends, when some achieve a combination of all these colors at once in a single pair of so-called golf stockings with a knitted body garment to match. It is not an important matter, however. The important thing is that it is no sign of caste for any man to parade more brightly hued legs than another. The golf stocking, dissociated from golf, has become one of the most democratic symbols of a democratic age. To this extent we have advanced toward realization of the prayer of the poet:

Then let us pray that come what may,
(As come it will for a' that)
That Sense and Worth, o'er a' the earth,
Shall bear the gree, an' a' that.
For a' that, an' a' that,
It's coming yet to a' that,
That Man to Man, the world o'er,
Shall brothers be for a' that.

"Bearing the gree," for the intelligence of those who have mislaid their glossary to Burns, signifies pre-eminence. Sense and Worth are visibly as likely to go bright-legged as anybody else; and all men are brothers at the sign of the haberdasher.

But there is also a point of interest for the amateur in human nature, the kindly, curious student of why a man does this today and doesn't do that, and then does that tomorrow and doesn't do this. It is not so very long ago since many a worthy man would have sternly refused himself to sport clothes, who is now, as one might say, all wrapped up in them: and by this indication such an one may, though it appear doubtful, presently array himself for the evening in clothes of Tyrian purple, jade green, burnt or push-cart orange, or royal blue, as his individual fancy selects. Should this revolution take place, however, it will not be his tailor who has persuaded him—he has tried and failed too many times within memory. No, it will be that something more forceful than mere tailors, that something—call it fashion if you will—dependent on tailors, no doubt, put in a certain sense independent of them, which determines the styles of men in so adamant a manner that few dare to defy its mandates.

TRAMCAR MANNERS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Dear Sir,—I think that you must have frequently seen that many Chinese passengers use to board or alight from a tram-car, from first class to third class compartment or vice versa.

What this really means I do not quite understand, but I believe they do this way is to save their time to wait until other third class passengers boarded or alighted, but they do not think that this gives a great deal of nuisance and inconvenience to those first class passengers. Those people seem to dress very smartly and must have some education at least, I think. Do you think they want to show to other people in the street that they always take first class, but afterwards walked to third class when the car has moved.

I hope that you will give a little comment in your valuable column with regard to this, and to draw the attention of the Tramway Company to issue strict regulation to the conductors from preventing these kinds of Chinese people to walk from one compartment to another, so as to avoid giving inconvenience to those first class passengers.

Thanking you,

A First Class Passenger.

Something To Think About

By Bruno Lessing

READING AND ABSORBING

The American Bible Society proudly announces in its annual report that 7,191,289 Bibles were distributed last year—an increase of 2,538,222 over the year before. It is a goodly distribution and the society may well be proud of its activities.

BUT—and this is part worth thinking about—the society reaches the conclusion that this enormous distribution of the Bible is proof that Christianity is not losing but is gaining ground throughout the world. Is this conclusion justified from this particular fact?

The distribution of books is one thing. The reading of them, the understanding of them and the absorption of them by the readers is an entirely different thing. You can scatter books around the world if you have money enough to pay for them. It is much more difficult to make people read them. And even more difficult to make people understand them. This applies to the Bible as well as to any other book.

In many small hotels throughout the United States you find a Bible in each bed-room. Occasionally some of these books are stolen. Many are never opened. It would be difficult to determine how many people were converted to Christianity by these books.

There is much more reading in this world than there is understanding of the books that are read. Enough books have been written to raise the entire world to a higher intellectual level—if they had been understood.

And the Bible—like all religious books—requires even more than reading and understanding. It requires believing. Many who read it and understand it do not believe it. Even some clergymen refuse to believe certain parts of it.

So, it hardly seems convincing to point to the number of Bibles that were printed and "distributed," and assert, that it is proof of the growth of Christianity. Particularly when there are so many other proofs to the contrary.

The World War is hardly proof that Christianity was growing. The manner in which the European nations are going about the cleaning-up of the mess, today, is almost proof that there is no such thing as Christianity in Europe.

We have churches enough and creeds enough and preachers enough in this country. And when they get squabbling over some portion of the Bible, the big radio audience enjoys it.

But where is the proof that the Golden Rule—which is the essence of the teaching of the Bible—is gaining ground today?

Our Literary Column

EXCERPTS FROM GREAT WRITERS

By Mathy

IT CAN'T BE DONE

If you're looking about for something to do, something big, something that will bring you fame and money, find something that can't be done and do it.

Whoever is at work that can be done is not indispensable. If he quits, seven others are in line to take his job.

But the man who can do what can't be done is not to be dispensed with. The business cannot get along without him.

Advertise for applicants for a job in your store at ten dollars a week, a job any industrious person can hold, and next morning the street will be black with the crowd of seekers.

Advertise for a man who will tell you in a day how to increase your net profits or decrease your expenses ten percent, and all you will need at your door is a policeman to handle the cranks.

Particularly in the higher realm of endeavor, in the domain of thought and of morals, it is the impossible that is essential, dominant, needed.

Conscience always points to what is beyond our capacity.

Reason invariably demonstrates that what should be done is the impractical.

The world progresses only as mankind does what can't be done.

The eight-hour day, says Mr. Forbes, was socialistic, anarchistic and absurd when first advocated. Nothing could be more impossible. Still, it lay on the conscience of the humane employer as well as upon the desire of the worker; and it was realised, and without any tremendous upheaval of the industries concerned.

It was once said that seven-day work could not be done away with in the steel industry. The nature of the business demanded continuous labor. Give steel-workers a Sabbath rest? It can't be done. Yet it was done. Today not five percent of the United States Steel Company's employees work seven days a week.

Against every demand of humanity it has been objected, "It can't be done."

You can't treat prisoners like human beings, they said, and for centuries the vile birds of horror and cruelty befouled every penitentiary. Today militant reformers are doing the impossible, and the cursed ramparts of inhumanity are crumbling.

Men could not spread religion without quarrelings, torture, force. But it is being done.

Plagues could not be prevented, the ignorant common people could not be educated, little children could not be spared from stunting labor, sweatshops could not be abolished, corporal punishment and trial by torture could not be brought to pass, slavery, duelling and gladiatorial games could not be abated. At some time or another practical men held all these things impossible.

And now they sagely tell us that war cannot be evaded; nations must have war; to expect to abolish war is ideal, fanatical, theoretical, impossible.

Very well. If it's impossible let's do it.

Hanihara Pleads For Friendship With U. S.

Providence, R. I., June 24.—Japan, in its dealings with the United States, has always believed that as between friends there is no question that cannot be adjusted amicably, Ambassador Hanihara of Japan declared today in an address at Brown University, where he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

With "such unique and precious history" back of American-Japanese friendship, he said, "the one great question in the minds of my people is: Is it the true sentiment of the American people to make light of its friendship which has been built up by hard, conscientious labor of the two peoples extending over nearly three-quarters of a century, not only to the good of themselves alone but for the good of the rest of mankind?"

The Japanese Ambassador sketched the history of the relations of the two nations, from when Commodore Perry set foot on the shore of Japan to the signing of the Washington Conference treatics. He refrained from any specific mention of the immigration, with its Japanese exclusion provision.

"If I fail to express myself adequately," he said, "it is not because of any lack of appreciation of your good will, but solely on account of the unfortunate limitations I am under in the use of the English language."

"It is indeed," he said, "a blessing to feel that one is among trusted friends to whom he may open his heart without fear of being misunderstood."

After thanking Brown University and the people of Rhode Island for the compliment bestowed upon him, which, he said, was an assurance of good will and friendship, the Ambassador began at once his outline of the long friendship between the two countries.

"And I may express the hope," he said, "that that friendship may survive. Aye! it will survive, if we remain true to our worthy traditions of the past, which is an embodiment of that great human spirit of mutual toleration and esteem."

BULWARK OF PEACE

At another point, after relating Japan's efforts to become a bulwark of peace in the Far East, he said:

"We Japanese have tried to become a great nation, not only in the attainment of strength sufficient to defend ourselves and protect our weaker neighbors from dangerous aggressions, but also we have striven to be great because we are anxious to serve the cause of humanity. We have been sincerely proud to serve with the great nations of the West, and we shall continue to serve as long as those nations will permit us to do so."

He paid high tribute to the many ambassadors and ministers who have represented the United States in Japan and to hundreds of other Americans who have played prominent parts in the story of modern Japan. Japan, he said, had been confronted with difficult problems, but "throughout these precarious years of our national life it was America more than any other country that helped us always with wise counsel and friendly assistance."

"We of Japan," he said, "all felt and still feel that we owe America a lasting debt of gratitude which so far we have not failed and will never fail to repay as opportunities open themselves to us."

TRADE WILL NATIONS

He spoke of the great trade Japan had furnished the western "Japan is a factor for security and commerce and progress, which I sometimes fear is hardly appreciated by the people of other countries. Sensational talk of rival navies and rival markets and trade routes is prevalent always in discussing and comparing the great powers; the benefits of those powers to each other and to the smaller nations is a less interesting subject.

"We are and have been for years, your greatest customer on the Pacific, overwhelmingly so, and the United States is the greatest market for our products. We saw nothing that could mar these happy and mutually beneficial relations until after the Russian War, when certain evil forces began to work against the best interest of our two countries. Fortunately, however, wise people on both sides of the Pacific were not slow in realising the effect of this sinister influence and spared no effort for its removal.

"The task was not easy, but we kept patience. At last, at the Washington Conference of a little over two years ago, in which one of Brown's worthy sons—Charles Evans Hughes—played the leading role so successfully, this unhappy symptom of international discord was entirely removed and the relations between America and Japan were restored to their old level of happy and glorious friendship.

"Such has been, in brief, the history of our relations, which were made immeasurably closer by the generous act of sympathy on the part of the American people at the time of our great calamity of last September."

Weighing Venus A Delicate Undertaking

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

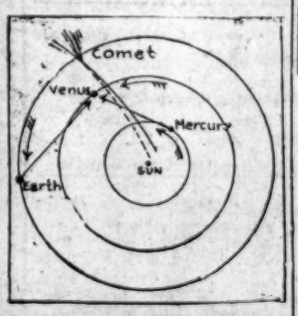
"I am in a high school astronomy class, and a question has come up as to the method of finding the mass of the planet Venus. Not having been able to find an explanation in the textbooks, I should be thankful to you for one. L. N."

You have encountered one of the most troublesome problems of practical astronomy. If Venus had a satellite the problem would be an easy one, but because she is companionless a roundabout method has to be pursued in solving it.

The problem amounts to finding out how much gravitational attraction, or say pulling force, Venus exerts upon other bodies around her. That force is directly proportional to her mass, or say weight, though it varies inversely with the square of the distance. So, if we can by careful observation ascertain how much Venus's attraction sways the earth, or the planet, Mercury, in its orbital motion, we can calculate how great her mass must be.

This becomes possible because Venus, the earth and Mercury all travel around the sun in concentric orbits of different size, and at different rates of speed, so that their positions with regard to one another and their distances apart are continually changing.

Venus's orbit is situated between that of Mercury and that of the earth, as shown in the diagram. The effect of her attraction upon them varies in accordance with the varying directions and distances.



In the situation shown, the pull of Venus upon the earth is backward, with reference to the orbital motion, and so a slight retardative effect is produced upon the earth's motion. At the same time, of course, the corresponding pull of the earth upon Venus causes a slight quickening of the orbital motion of the latter.

On the other hand, while Venus is retarding the earth she is hastening Mercury in its orbital motion. So, careful observations of the motions of both the earth and Mercury give information about the attractive force, and therefore the mass, of Venus.

But the effect in both cases is slight, and cannot be measured with absolute accuracy. However, there is a third way of measuring Venus's attractive force, although it cannot so regularly be applied, and that is by studying her gravitative influence upon comets passing near her on their way toward or from the sun.

This is also included in our illustration, where we see a comet coming in to make its perihelion swing around the sun, and about to intersect the orbit of Venus at a point where she has just passed. The unbroken curve shows the path that the comet would have pursued if Venus had not been so near, while the broken curve shows the influence of her attraction in bending the comet's path so that it must go nearer the sun than it would have done if not pulled by Venus.

It should be added that in the case of the perturbative effects of Venus's attraction on the earth, it has been found that the most trustworthy data are obtained by noting her influence in changing the obliquity of the ecliptic, i. e. the inclination of the axis of the earth to the plane of its orbit. Of the details of these observations and calculations would be useless to speak here, but it may be said that they prove that Venus's mass, or weight, is about tillion tons, that of Venus is about 0.8 that of the earth. The weight of the earth being put at six sex-four and eight-tenths sextillions.

Are you ritoing me a tender luve letter, deerest? sed Pa. If so, sed Pa, maik it snappy.

Doant worry, sed Ma. I am riteing no luv letter. I am gitting up a slogan for our womans club, sed Ma. Thay toeld me I was the only one that cud rite a good slogan, so I must make good, sed Ma.

I have no dout thay thot I wud rite it for you, sed Pa.

Thay doant know anything about you, sed Ma. This is a new club, all of them are straingers to us. Thay doant eeven know I am married. I must con-fess, tho, sed Ma, a slogan isent the easiest thing in the wurld to rite.

What is it, a slogan? I sed.

A battel cry, Bobbie, sed Pa. Every womans club shud have a few dozen of them, sed Pa. Thay git into enuff jams, hevings knows, sed Pa.

How is this for a slogan? sed Ma

From Harth & Hoam We Nevver Roam.

That is O. K. for a slogan, sed Pa, but not a slogan for a bunch of club wimmen. That wud be a good slogan for a cricket, sed Pa.

All rite, sed Ma, I will try aggenn. I liked that, tho, wen I rote it. & then Ma thinked for a littel wile & then she sed How is this for a slogan,

Our Club Will Stand For All That's Grand.

That is pritty good, sed Pa, but it is too high toned, Pa sed. You must have sum members that do not think thay are grand ladys? sed Pa. Git down moar to erth, set Pa. Give me that pen, sed Pa.

Now, sed Pa after a little wile, here are sum slogans for you to choose from, sed Pa, listen to this:

Ladys Clubs Saivs the Land
From Sinners
While Thare Husbands Cooks
the Dinners.

That is silly, sed Ma. How many dinners have you evver cooked in this house?

Look Out for Squalls &
Stormy Weather
Wen Us Old Gals Git Together.

Give me that paiper & pencil, sed Ma, & quit beeing idiotick & Ma grabbed the pencil & paiper & I went to bed & I doant know if they evver got a slogan for the Wimmens Club or not.

I will cloaze with a slogan for littel boys:

Eat & Drink & Laff & Play,
Wen You Git Married Yure
Hair Gits Gray.

Shoes Take On New and Interesting Buckles, Buttons and Straps

How many children have been puzzled over the first lines of that old nursery rhyme:

"One, two, buckle my shoe."

For such shoe buckles as we had, until quite recently, didn't buckle at all. They were attached to the front of slippers or pumps merely as a matter of adornment. Strictly speaking they were not buckles at all. And they did have a trying way of getting loose from their moorings and falling by the wayside.

There are still such purely ornamental buckles, and shoemakers seem lately to have learned the trick of attaching them past all chance undoing. Then there are buckles that really buckle in the good old traditional manner—thus serving an actual purpose as well as offering excuse for the use of some ornamental material or other. Sometimes these buckles are covered with leather, and sometimes they are entirely of wood. There are steel buckles and for evening rhinestone buckles, colored stone buckles and buckles of silver or gilt.

One of the smartest things for shoe decoration is the small ornamental disk—called button, usually, though it no more buttons than the usual buckle buckles. The shoe button of the ornamental sort is simply placed in a conspicuous place for decoration.

Some of these so-called buttons are made up of small cut-steel beads. Others are of enamel, sometimes with inlayed designs of silver, sometimes with flowers or other decorations of contrasting enamel.

Sometimes there is a row of three of these buttons at the instep of the slipper—large above, smaller below, or the sizes reversed. The smartest place for the ornament of the shoe is at the instep now, rather than at the side of the ankle. Often a one-strapped slipper will have an ornamental button on the strap, at the instep. The side buckle, really used to keep the strap in place, will be quite plain.

Some of the new shoe arnaments. At the lower left is a rosette of brown lace with acenter of bronze beads. Above it is a big button of cut-glass surrounded with small bright blue beads. At right, a black enameled button, with a chevron of silver. Above, at left, a button of colored enamel and a shield of black and gilt. The four shoes show, top and bottom, cutsteel ornaments, one of the center ones three cut-steel buttons of graduated sizes, and the other an ornament of mother-of-pearl and nickel.

TWO BLACKBERRY RECIPES

Blackberry Pudding.

Cook blueberries until soft in water to cover, sweetening heavily. Put into a buttered bakingdish in alternate layers with thin slices of buttered bread, having berries on top. Let stand for an hour and bake for fifteen or twenty minutes. Serve cold with cream.

Blackberry Muffins.

Sift together a pint flour, two teasponfuls baking powder and a half teaspoonful salt: Rub in a half cupful butter or lard and butter mixed, then add one cupful milk mixed with a tablespoonful sugar and a beaten egg. When well mixed add one cupful berries and bake in well-greased muffin tins in a hot oven.

HAVE YOU SEEN—

Sport handkerchiefs for tennis, golf, swimming and boating?

For tennis, for instance, a little racket is embroidered on the colored linen handkerchief. A diving girl, a gold club and bag, a little sail boat—these are emblems embroidered on some of the other kinds of handkerchief. They may be bought in half-dozen sets.

The Spectator

The American Curse—Noise

The curse of the American city is noise.

We are proud of our new inventions, but every one of them seems geared to make as much racket as possible.

The railroad trains are luxurious, the subway is swift, the street cars are convenient, the elevated railway is an excellent device; but all of them have iron upon iron, and make an uproar like the chariots of the gods of Walhalla scooting to a free fight.

Will it ever be possible to have a train with rubber tires, or sled runners?

We are an adjustable people. We get used to the infernal din of the day of judgment, the sirens blowing, the bells clanging, the horses clattering.

The postman blows his whistle as he approaches and yells like a Sioux chief up the hall when he has a letter, for which you must come down four flights of stairs in order to pay the two cents postage due.

The iceman, the grocer's boy, the butcher and the baker—each has his part in the mighty chorus of city life.

Emerging from the theatre, you find wild confusion like the wrath of heaven, the starter yelling out the carriage numbers, the taxis exploding, the chauffeurs quarreling, the crowd all talking at once, and the street car going by like the wagon of Jehu the son of Nimshi.

We are, of course, a very wonderful and progressive people, but why make such a hullabaloo about it?

Mr. Jefferson's declaration was deficient, wherein he asserted that every man is entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. He should have added that we are all also entitled to a bit of quiet—at least now and then.

Their Second Summer the Hardest

Teething and hot weather make their second summer a trying time for little ones. Summer disorder of stomach and bowels and infantile cholera may be quickly controlled and suffering relieved by Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. Easy to take in a little sweetened water. 'SOCIALISM' IN MEDICINE IS HIT BY DOCTORS

President Of A. M. A. Urges Fight On Governmetal Projects

Chicago, June 11.—Aggressive opposition to the "various governmental projects for practicing medicine" was urged upon members of the American Medical Association by Dr. William Allen Pusey, new president, at the seventy-fifth annual session of the association here. Decrying the tendency toward "medical socialism," he said:

"During the last hundred years the social trend has been continuously away from the spirit of individualism. There is an evident tendency now to appropriate medicine in the social movement; to make the treatment of the sick a function of society as a whole; to take away the individual's responsibility and to transfer it to the State; to turn it over to organised movements. If this movement should prevail to its logical limits, medicine would degenerate into a guild of dependent employees.

The tendency has already resulted practically in medical socialism for the middle classes of Europe. If we accept without prudent foresight expedients to meet temporary difficulties such as the Sheppard-Towner Act, medical service will soon be in the same situation in this country."

BUREAUCRAEY OPPOSED

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, retiring president of the association, made opposition to state medical service the keynote of his address.

Notwithstanding a poll taken by the association which revealed that only 51 percent of the physicians answering believed alcohol to have therapeutic value, the house of delegates approved a resolution, presented by Dr. Thomas Clark Chalmers of Forest Hills, N. Y., to urge the repeal of sections of the national prohibition act which limit the amount of alcohol to be used by physicians and "which limit the proper relation between a physician and his patient in prescribing alcohol medicinally."

A similar resolution to modify the dry law limitation on alcoholic prescriptions was introduced last year at the San Francisco meeting, but failed of enactment. Action yesterday followed the despatch from Washington stating that the Supreme Court had ruled that physicians cannot prescribe beer as medicine.

"REALLY PROPAGANDA"

Opposition to the resolution was voiced by Dr. John H. Murray, delegate from Pennsylvania. He said:

"Demand for this amendment came particularly from New York State. It is really propaganda. Physicians need to wake up to the fact that vicious interests are using the American Medical Association to promote their causes. Dozens of delegates were opposed to the resolution but they were not organised to defeat it.

"Four or five years ago the bureau of chemistry of the American Medical Association made the claim that alcohol served no use in medicine that could not be equally or better served by some other agency. This claim has not been successfully refuted. I have not used any whisky in my practice for 16 years. In the poll taken by the American Medical Association on the use of alcohol by physicians, about one half said they did not use it, and an additional percentage added they could get along without it, bringing the proportion much higher than the figures quoted by Dr. Chalmers."

ERIE CONTROL TO VAN SWERINGENS?

O. P. & M. J. VAN SWERINGEN. INTL.

Without waiting for official confirmation, financial circles have accepted as a fact the report that O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen, multi-millionare railroad kings, of Cleveland, O., have bought control of the great Erie Railroad and will merge it as part of a 10,000-clle railroad system, numbering in it the Nickel Plate, the Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette, Virginian, and possibly the Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

U.S. Navy Sacrificed To Politics, Charges Daniels

BY JOSEPHUS DANIELS
(U. S. Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson Cabinet)

What is the matter with the Navy? That is a question Congress and the newspapers are asking and seeking answer to.

It has been a series of calamities for the Navy—since the so-called Disarmament Conference compelled it to scrap the magnificent capital ships which would have given it supremacy of the seas in big guns and big ships. Then followed the disaster of the indefensible destruction of a number of destroyers in the Pacific, following close upon the turning over of the naval oil reserves for exploitation to Doheny and Sinclair. But I am not going to write about oil and the scandal of the oleaginous trail. The Grand Jury is now functioning and results may be expected that will make the punishment fit the crime.

Two resolutions in one day were introduced in Congress to find out what is the matter with the Navy, another to ascertain why Britain and Japan are outbuilding the United States, and another for a second international conference to take a further bite at the cherry of reducing navy competitive building.

No longer does anybody accept the grand 5-5-3 flourish as little more than a camouflage while the American Navy's proud position was sacrificed. At the time it was a magnificent gesture and many people thought it was a real step to reduction of armament. It was nothing but a gesture.

A BLOW TO THE NAVY

Now that months have passed, it becomes apparent that no consideration whatever was given to the expert advice of naval statesmen. Not even was Secretary Denby allowed to take part in the conference.

And the Naval officers, who knew the much-praised settlement was a farce and a blow to the American Navy, were bottled up. They were directed to give figures asked and were not invited or permitted to voice their real feelings when the programme they had urged and helped to secure went to the junk-pile.

If the General Board of the Navy had spoken its mind when Secretary Hughes was indulging in praising the surrender and calling it something wonderful, it would have required asbestos to contain the remarks of those able sailor-men.

When the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve was being given away, real naval men were again muzzled, except the few who were ready to injure the Navy to court favor with power. Walsh and Pomerene and Roberts have not obtained the aid from Navy men to which they are entitled, and which the rank and file of the Navy would be glad to give.

A NAVAL TRAGEDY

The so-called Disarmament or Reduction of Armament Conference accomplished its purpose. It was not called until there began a voice of criticism that the United States was doing nothing to prevent the recurrence of another war or to reduce the military burdens of the world. Then toward the election year of 1922 the conference was called. It succeeded in its political purpose. It was "a good enough Morgan for that election," as Thurlow Weed would have characterised it. For it enabled the speakers for the Administration to point with pride to the scrapping of dreadnaughts (some 80 percent completed) as a great achievement.

It was later to be disclosed that there was no real end of competitive naval building, and that the fleet manoeuvres were disappointing, partially because the antiquated 12-inch gun ships had been kept and the 16-inch-gun ships of fast speed had been scrapped. It was a political Morgan. It was a naval tragedy.

Another election is approaching. The United States has officially done little or nothing to reduce the cost of militarism in the world. Its own expenditures for war and navy are three times what they were in 1914, and still they lack the desired efficiency.

The lack of markets abroad has brought the wheat farmers to real distress. The textile industry is depressed. The world staggers. The Methodist General Conference rebukes the failure of this country to lend for peace and intimates that its policy is more pagan than Christian.

The country is growing tired of a policy of sending unofficial observers one day; taking part in oil negotiations, for big American interests another, and then denouncing any participation in European matter the third day.

Therefore, the administration is looking toward finding another "good enough Morgan for this election." It may bring out the World Court, emasculated and emaciated, and it may call another international conference to reduce the competitive armaments of the world. It would be in session during the campaign or be promised at that time so that the people might again be given another gold brick.

In the meantime the poor old Navy, busy scrapping its giant dreadnaughts, is to be surveyed to find out just where it stands with relation to the navies of Japan and Britain. No investigation is needed.

"THE POOR OLD NAVY"

The scrapping of our big ships gives Britain primacy in every character of ships, except destroyers, and gives Japan a lead in battle cruisers and scout cruisers. And both these former allies, which worked together at the Washington Conference, go forward rapidly building 10,000-ton cruisers and submarines, and a great navy for the central blow.

And the United States Navy—it gives its oil reserve to exploiters while Britain is getting oil reserves all over the world. It scraps big ships and permits British supremacy. It lacks the component part of a well balanced fleet.

The survey will be an indictment and conviction of the Administration for a policy that has denied the Navy of the United States the proud position it should hold. This country ought to have incomparably the strongest Navy in the world or a real world agreement for peace.

And the oil from Teapot Dome enriches the favorites, and endangers naval efficiency in an emergency.

Is it any wonder Congress is troubled over naval matters and gropes? The Navy has been sacrificed to political expediency and camouflage diplomacy. That's the real thing that is "the matter with the Navy."

WORLD COURT GETS APPROVAL OF LUTHERANS

American Participation In Permanent Tribunal Asked

New York, June 29.—Declaring its conviction that the question of war was a moral and not a political issue, the New York and New England Synod of the United Lutheran Church, at its session here, passed a resolution declaring to further the cause of peace, the United States should enter a permanent court of international justice.

The resolution, which was presented by the Rev. H. R. Gold, pastor of the Holy Trinity Church, New Rochelle, N. Y., acting as chairman of the moral and social welfare committee of the Synod, included these recommendations:

We believe that the United States should enter a permanent court of international justice.

We petition the United Lutheran Church at its coming convention at Chicago in October, to use its committee on social and moral welfare, its board of education, its church school and parish board and other agencies to create a better understanding of the consequences of war and to indicate the methods whereby peace may be maintained.

We petition the United Lutheran Church at its convention in Chicago in October to declare in favor of a permanent court of international justice, and that we instruct the delegates from this synod to use their influence to this end.

We petition the United Lutheran Church to recommend to the next Lutheran World Conference to adopt a program of education and action, so that the 80,000,000 Lutherans throughout the world may be united and led in a campaign against war.

We recommend to the United Lutheran Church to consider the advisability of co-operating with other church bodies in world-wide and determined endeavor to banish war and substitute peaceful means of settling international controversies.

Opposition to the original phrasing of the recommendation advocating the entrance of the United States into "the" Permanent Court of International Justice on the ground that it pledged the Lutheran body to the support of a definite proposal of a definite political party resulted in the changing of the phrase concerned to "a" World Court; Mr. Gold, in support of his recommendation, said:

We are not taking the church to the polls or the ballot box. We are seeking to weave into our social life the genuine religious convictions that we have.

Dr. A. Steimle of the Church of the Advent, New York City, in supporting the motion, said:

The question has been raised above the level of politics. It is a moral question. We have every right to interpret the conscience of the congregations to whom we minister, and we believe that we can best do so by supporting this recommendation.

The "program of education and inquiry into the causes and consequences of war," which one member of the synod opposed as savoring of "the propaganda of pacificism," was upheld on the ground that "peace fitted itself into the Christian program, and that it was necessary that the pastors of the Lutheran church should know whether they had a right to stand for peace in all cases or whether "they must soft-pedal" on this issue.
